Tory Gains Plunge Britain Into Crisis

Price Props On Potatoes Voted Again By Senators

Lucas' Ban on Aid Without Marketing Quotas Is Rejected; Aiken's Plan Adopted

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Senate voted last night to continue for another year at least, the present multi-million dollar potato program.

It defeated by a vote of 43 to 35 a proposal by Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) to abolish all price supports unless marketing quotas were in force. Instead, it voted a mild substitute by Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.), minority leader in the Agriculture Committee, that continues present supports where voluntary "marketing agreements" are in effect. Such agreements are already in effect in virtually all chief potato-growing areas. They were in effect last year in 98 percent of the Maine potato area—the largest in the country.

The vote was along party lines. The Republicans overwhelmingly supported the present program that will cost 100 million dollars this year. The vote for continuation of the present high support levels was 28 Republicans, 15 Democrats. The vote against was 8 Republicans and 27 Democrats.

Senators from the Washington area voted as follows:

For present support levels, Robertson (Va.)

See SPUDS, Page 11, Column 6.

Md. Spuds Cost U. S. $2.30; D. C. Paying $2

While the Senate was continuing present high potato price supports another year yesterday, the Government was buying nearby potatoes.

Uncle Sam paid $2.30 a sack (100 pounds) for potatoes in Garrett County, Md., yesterday.

An effort by Maryland Production and Marketing Administrator Joseph H. Blandford to sell them in Washington without loss was unsuccessful. Local dealers are buying Pennsylvania and Canadian spuds, shipped in here, for $2 a bushel. The Maryland spuds would cost about $2.50 after transportation.

Pennsylvania potatoes, raised outside the Government's support program—which called for acreage restrictions—are selling in the local market at the same price as Canadian imports.

D. C. Buildings Assured Coal For 3 Weeks

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

District government institutions were assured a three-weeks' supply for coal yesterday while the commercial soft-coal situation here went from bad to worse.

General Services Administrator Jess Larsen told the District Commissioners they can count on receiving 1500 tons a week (present consumption) for three weeks.

Roland M. Brennan, District purchasing officer and fuel coordinator, said this meant:

1. Plans to ration coal to District institutions will be held in abeyance for at least another week or 10 days.

2. Public schools will be able to remain open for at least that long.

Brennan said he will resurvey the situation in about 10 days. If it then appears that supplies will be exhausted at the end of three weeks from now, it may be necessary to put into effect the priority system drawn up last Tuesday, he said. Under this plan, Health Department clinics and institutions where persons live would be provided for first. The rest would take what is left. Schools, which now have just a few days' supply, have the next lowest priority. Libraries have the lowest.

The situation of commercial users of soft coal was less encouraging. J. Thomas Kennedy, chairman of the fuel coordinating committee, said dealers' bins hold less than a week's supply. And he doesn't feel consumers are doing all they can to help.

Kennedy said he made a tour of office buildings yesterday and found several overheated. The thermometer in one read 78 degrees, he said.

"I'm worried about it," said Kennedy. "I'm afraid we're going to run out of coal."

He said he will have an accurate figure on the commercial situation Monday when he has asked dealers to give him figures on their current supplies, amounts coming in and their normal needs.

There is still no shortage of some grades of hard coal, Kennedy said. He urged commercial users to find out if they can use hard instead of soft coal.

Thursday's ban on further deliveries of soft coal to churches brought an offer of help yesterday from a Fairfax County man. Lewis S. Travis of Chantilly, Va., called the Washington Post to say he had 42 cords of oak, hickory and ash and that he would be happy to sell to churches for what it cost him to cut. He's at Herndon 71-W-1 or RE. 1820, extension 798.

In Baltimore, Maryland Emergency Fuel Administrator Walter N. Ruth reported the first case of a house being without coal and announced "the real pinch has arrived."

Arlington Virus Identified As Mild Form of Influenza

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The so-called Arlington virus which has brought three-day sickness to hundreds of Arlington, Va., school children was identified yesterday as an influenza.

Virologists at the National Institutes of Health gave it the preliminary "flu" label on the basis of laboratory tests which yielded "an influenza-like virus."

The viruses isolated, however, have not yet been typed as to their relation to known types and strains of influenza, said Dr. R. J. Huebner, head of the Public Health Service's virus section.

Nor is it yet known whether available influenza vaccine will work against the Arlington virus, Dr. Huebner stated.

Earlier, in clinical and epidemiological study in the current outbreak, Dr. Huebner said the infectious ailment appeared to be an influenza, highly infectious but

Lane Income Tax Program Is Enacted

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 24 (AP).—The General Assembly has enacted Governor Lane's income tax relief program.

In short order, the Legislature completed action today on the last of four administration bills cutting the tax on returns due next April 15.

The Senate and House, in four hours, both stamped final approval on a bill granting a special $1000 exemption for each taxpayer on his spouse who is 65 or over.

A Republican amendment, in which both Houses concurred, also provides an extra $600 exemption for each dependent 65 or older.

The measure was sent to Governor Lane for signature, along with these others, two passed last night and one eight days ago:

1. Increasing from $100 to $500 the limit on investment income for taxpayers eligible to use the short form tax return and its flat two per cent rate. The effect is to cut the rate of investment income from five to two per cent when investment income is no more than $500.

2. Two companion bills increasing the deductions for dependents from $400 to $600.

Total savings to taxpayers will amount to about $1,250,000.

Tax-conscious groups in both Houses continued to press for even deeper cuts.

House Republicans, aided by some dissident Democrats, won a 55-51 vote in favor of a bill which would let taxpayers deduct Federal income taxes in computing State income taxes.

Later, in a night session, the administration marshaled a 15 to 11 vote in the Senate to doom the Republican-inspired bill. The vote was taken on a motion by Senator Kimble (R., Allegheny).

Effect of the action was to override an unfavorable report by the Ways and Means Committee. The bill faces one more vote in the House.

NLRB Slaps Down Denham In New Ruling

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday told off NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham in coldly legal but unmistakable language.

The board, headed by Paul M. Herzog, stated — 21 times, to be exact — that the five-man panel is boss of the agency, and that Denham is no independent authority but a mere "agent" of the board.

Under the Taft-Hartley management-labor relations act of 1947, the General Counsel's office has autonomous statutory power for prosecuting violators of the law. He also derives certain other powers from the board, such as enforcement of board decisions through the courts.

Yesterday, the board issued a set of "clarifying" revisions of the authority passed on by the panel to the general counsel, and in so doing, pulled the reins on Denham's activities.

The board also hammered away at the theme that Denham was supposed to be working for it—and not independently—by referring 21 times to the "General Counsel of the Board." The original document outlining the board's delegation of authority referred only to the "General Counsel."

One of the major changes ord-

U. S. Freezes Citizen Assets Of 3 Satellites

Acheson Lectures Romania, Hungary On Independence; Hits Soviet on Austria

The United States last night froze the assets of the citizens of three Soviet satellites which have been attacking American envoys and citizens as spies and warmongers. Earlier Secretary of State Acheson delivered stern lectures to two of the satellites and to Russia.

Attorney General McGrath announced that he had stopped payments from the bank accounts and other assets in this country of citizens of Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania.

Secretary Acheson warned Hungary and Romania to behave like independent countries if they wanted to continue "normal relations" with the United States.

This was a clear hint of a possible break in diplomatic relations, although the Secretary said such a step was not imminent or under consideration now.

Acheson also complained of Soviet stalling on the Austrian treaty, and said it was clear that Russia "has no intention of concluding" the treaty at this time.

Answering a question, the Secretary also told what he thought of another eastern European government—this time Marshal Tito's in Yugoslavia.

No Illusions About Tito

He said the United States was under no illusions as to the Communist character of Tito's regime. For this reason the United States was not surprised when Tito recognized the Communist regime of Ho Chi-minh in Indo-China.

The statement on eastern Europe followed the break in diplomatic relations with Bulgaria earlier this week, and also the 15-year sentence imposed on Robert A. Vogeler, an American businessman, in Hungary.

The pattern of behavior in Bulgaria and Hungary is "absolutely clear," the Secretary said; "the principal purpose behind what these governments have been doing is plainly to make the so-called iron curtain impenetrable."

"Their purpose is to cut off the people of eastern Europe from the free world," he said, "to deprive them of all hope of any other fate than that reserved for them by their present rulers, and to liquidate all signs and symbols of western influence, to the accompaniment of a flood of propaganda and denunciation of 'spies,' 'warmongers,' and other familiar whipping boys."

Not Intervention

American concern for human rights in these countries is not a sign of hostility or intervention in internal affairs, the Secretary went on; it is a fundamental principle, and is called for by the United Nations Charter and by the peace treaties.

Recalling that both Bulgaria and Hungary were former enemy states, allies of the Nazis, the Secretary said:

"States which claim to be sovereign members of the international community must act the part. Their governments must observe accepted standards in their relations with the rest of the world, and they must maintain the attributes of their independence."

Official U. S. Is Worried At Outcome

Observers Feel Coalition Likely, Discount Chances Of New Election

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The photo-finish of the British election worried official Washington yesterday, and for just one reason:

The indicated majority was too small for Prime Minister Attlee or anyone else to govern effectively.

Although no official would comment publicly, those who talked privately felt a new election in the next few months would not settle anything.

When 85 percent of the eligible voters have gone to the polls, and have made their choice seriously after full debate, there is no stay-at-home vote that might change the result in a new appeal to the country. And there is no new issue in prospect on which British might be persuaded to switch their choice on a second try.

Self-Denial Called Need

The only concrete issue that separates the parties today is nationalization of the steel industry, which Labor pushed through the last Parliament over bitter Conservative protests, but which has not yet been put into effect.

The real issue facing the British, as officials here see it, is the need of courageous and self-denying measures to cut expenses, to push productivity and to restore the strength of the pound sterling. On these issues, broadly speaking, Attlee and Winston Churchill and most of their respective followers are in agreement.

So, inescapably, there was much talk in Washington yesterday of a temporary coalition government under which the British could weather economic storms ahead.

Perhaps it was wishful talk: nothing in dispatches from London suggested that Attlee was considering coalition. Still, the feeling among competent observers here, including officials who know England well, was that the British would have to come to a coalition before long.

Earlier Elections Recalled

There have been close elections before in British parliamentary history, but none like this one. Once, in 1910, the Conservatives and Liberals ran a dead heat, but the Liberals were able to form an effective and powerful government with the help of 80 Irish nationalist members.

Early in 1924 Ramsay MacDonald became the first Labor Prime Minister, although the Conservatives of that day had 258 seats and were the largest party in Parliament. MacDonald was able to form his cabinet by an alliance of his 191 Laborites and 159 Liberals.

But minority government seldom lasts long, and in 1924 MacDonald's experiment lasted less than a year. In 1929, when he won a bare majority of 28 over the Conservatives, he again had to get the support of 59 Liberals to govern.

This time the Liberals are only a pathetic remnant of a once-great party, and there are no other splinter parties to which Attlee could turn as allies. It is the first time in this century that an election has ended with no prospect of even halfway effective government.

Why, one may ask, can't Attlee govern when he seems likely to have a majority of between 20 and 30 votes over the Conservatives?

One answer is that, under the parliamentary system, cabinet ministers and junior ministers have to be members of the House of Commons or the House of Lords. At least 80 Labor members, it was estimated yesterday, are in de-

Churchill Family Takes 3, Loses 1

London, Feb. 24. (AP)—Three members of Winston Churchill's family were elected to The Commons Thursday. They were:

Churchill himself, 75-year-old leader of the Conservative Party, who rolled up 37,239 votes in his Woodford constituency, in Essex, against Laborite Seymour Hills, who got 18,704. His majority was 18,535 against 17,200 five years ago.

Duncan Sandys, Churchill's son-in-law, won as the Conservative candidate in the Streatham district of London.

Capt. Christopher Soames, another son-in-law, scored a Conservative victory in the Bedford district formerly held by Labor. He had a 2108 majority in a four-way race.

But Randolph Churchill, son of the former Prime Minister, was defeated in the Devenport district by Michael Foot, Laborite incumbent.

Fair Deal Hurt, Is GOP View Of Tory Gain

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Republican leaders yesterday hailed the Conservative showing in the British elections as evidence of a "world trend against socialism" and predicted the same trend will slow the Fair Deal in November.

Administration Democrats hotly countered that what happened in Britain will have no political effect in this country, either on the Truman legislative program or the November elections.

But the Democrats as usual split. Southern Democrats appeared no less happy than the Republicans over the sharp cut in British Labor Party seats. Left wingers brusquely termed it "no comfort" to the GOP.

"After all," said Minnesota's Senator Hubert Humphrey, "the Labor Government was returned."

Capitol Hill nonetheless followed the election returns as closely as the British themselves. Most Senators carried around their individual tabulations of the latest returns, frequently checking the results with their colleagues and newsmen.

There was much speculation on whether the altered British voting pattern might effect Congressional action on European recovery appropriations, with these conflicting views:

That it won't have any effect—we don't grant ECA aid because we like any particular government but because we are compelled to grant aid for our own security.

That we won't grant increased aid and whether we cut it more may depend on whether the now tipsy Labor Government presses for more socialization.

That some old-line legislators will be more strongly inclined than ever to slash ECA if reducing aid would make it tougher for the Labor Government to retain control.

The last comment came from two Senators of different parties who declined to be quoted by name.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., O.) pretty much summed up the Republican view that the outcome should be politically encouraging to the GOP.

Said Taft:

"The big increase in Conservative Party strength, coming after similar gains in New Zealand and

Labor Wins But Majority Is Too Small To Govern

Attlee Party Leads By Vote of 314-294; Cabinet Calls Emergency Talks

London (Saturday) Feb. 25 (U.P.).—The Labor Party won a hair-breadth majority in the new House of Commons today after a photo-finish election that plunged Britain into a political crisis.

So close was the race that the Labor Government was left impotent and a new general election was expected after a few months of political turmoil. The government's majority is too small to control the Commons.

Combined Vote Higher

Not only had the top-heavy majority of the government in the Commons been wiped out in a nation-wide sweep to the right, but the combined Conservative-Liberal popular vote was higher than that of the Laborites.

Flabbergasted Labor leaders called an emergency meeting of the Cabinet for this morning after gloomy consultations at party headquarters and at No. 10 Downing st., Prime Minister Clement Attlee's official residence.

In their talks late into the night, it was said on excellent authority that the Labor chieftains agreed:

1. The Labor government will continue in office for the present.

2. Parliament will meet as scheduled March 1 and King George will open it formally March 6 with a speech from the throne outlining Labor's legislative program.

Budget Stress Forecast

3. The Government for the present will concentrate on getting essential legislation through the Commons, notably the budget for the fiscal year starting April 1.

[The Associated Press reported that a Labor source said there is little doubt that the party will continue to govern Britain alone.

[He said Labor is "unalterably opposed" to any form of coalition with opposition parties and that Labor leaders accept the fact there has to be a fully functioning government this time of year to carry on the country's government, particularly in financial matters.]

In the popular vote, the Conservatives and Liberals combined had

20 False Alarm Suspects Taken in Six-Mile Chase

Police vigils over Sixth Precinct fire boxes paid off early today after a wild 6-mile chase across the city, with the arrest of two youths suspected of turning in 20 false alarms during the past two weeks.

Caught in Chevy Chase at 12:10 a. m. after being spied in the 5900 block of 2d st. nw. by Pvt. James E. Stargel who said he saw them turning in a false alarm, were a 19-year-old driver and a 15-year-old companion. They were charged with exceeding 70 miles per hour, reckless driving, driving without headlights and going through two red lights.

The two were returned to the Sixth Precinct to be questioned in connection with the alarms.

Police reported the suspects' car caused property damage at 9th st. and Missouri ave. nw., in part of the chase, which ranged at speeds up to 85 miles an hour.

Bolton Acquitted In Shooting of Walter Reuther

Detroit, Feb. 24 (AP).—A jury tonight acquitted Carl Bolton, charged as the gunman who shot Walter Reuther nearly two years ago.

The eight women and four men jurors deliberated only one and a half hours before reaching their verdict.

Bolton, one-time vice president of a CIO United Auto Workers' local, was charged with assault with intent to kill Reuther. The UAW president was wounded seriously by a shotgun blast April 20, 1948.

Bolton, dapper convict now serving a 10-to-15-year term for burglary, leaped for joy on hearing the verdict. With tears in his eyes, he smilingly posed for photographers.

Ol' Man Winter Blowing Two-Day Cold Spell Here

Ol' Man Winter is due to whistle while he works over the Washington area today and possibly for the next couple of days, and his whistles will reduce further the already fast-shrinking coal piles.

The Weather Bureau forecast last night that early this morning it will be partly cloudy, windy, and turning colder, with low in the middle 20s. Through the day, the Weather Man said, it will be fair, much colder, with high in the middle 30s.

Present villain of the piece is a Canadian cold air mass which has been chilling the northern Plains States for two days, en route here. The chill atmosphere appears likely to stay with us a couple of days, it was reported.

Also, the forecaster believes, no rain or snow will appear on the weather map horizon.

Sothoron Bill Passes Second Reading in Maryland Senate

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Feb. 24.—The bill to reorganize Prince Georges County Government passed its second reading in the Senate today, but not without a verbal interchange between Montgomery and Prince Georges County Senators.

The bill, S-43, was up for second reading with six amendments to the original text when Senator Roy Tasco Davis said he would abstain from voting on the measure. Senator Davis explained that he did not want to break Senate tradition by voting against the local legislation of a colleague.

He asked Senator L. Harold Sothoron, the bill's sponsor, to explain why the bill had to be passed at the current restricted session.

Senator Sothoron explained that because of a flaw in a measure passed by the 1949 session, the number of commissioners who shall serve on the county's board was not specified. That flaw, he said, must be remedied.

He admitted that the flaw could have been remedied by a simpler bill. Senator Davis asked the Prince Georges County Senator why he had not used the constitutional provisions for a charter form of government to draw his measure.

Sothoron replied, "We don't like the charter form of government."

The bill now faces a third reading in the Senate before passage there, then would go to the House for its consideration before final passage.

ECA Witness Is Made Victim Of Connally-Lodge Crossfire

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The chief American Marshall Plan representative in the United Kingdom was caught yesterday in a burst of Senatorial crossfire over British economic policy.

The luckless official in the middle was W. John Kenney, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration mission in Britain. Batting him from opposite sides were Senators Connally (D., Tex.) and Lodge (R., Mass.).

Kenney was testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the authorization for a third year of ECA aid. Out of the blue, Connally, chairman of the committee, denounced recent British limitations on the purchase of American companies' oil.

"While we are dishing out billions" to the British, Connally complained, the British are trying to undercut American business.

While the Government pays Kenney a big salary, Connally went on, all Kenney does is help Britain find ways not to buy American goods.

Kenney protested that this was not his attitude, and that he hoped the British would not cut out American oil purchases.

At this point, Lodge jumped into the fray and challenged Kenney to explain why the British should not stop American oil imports if they could substitute sterling area oil.

It is "inconceivable" and "perilously close to nonsense," Lodge charged, to favor the importation into Britain of American oil in such a case, because that process simply widened the dollar gap, instead of closing it.

"You want to destroy our export industry," Connally replied, shifting the attack to Lodge. "We'd let the British grab all the profitable markets in the world and cut out our own industry if we do what you want."

Not at all, Lodge insisted. But what Connally was recommending, Lodge continued, was to put a burden on American taxpayers to fund and finance the export of a few favored industries, like oil from Connally's home State.

"Let's not call it a European Recovery Program if we do that," said Lodge, "but a subsidy to American industry."

On the other side of the Capitol, meantime, ECA chief Paul G. Hoffman testified on the same authorization bill before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

In that forum, he was called on to do a battle against two proposed amendments to the Marshall Plan which he believed would have unfortunate results.

One was a suggestion by Representative James P. Richards (D., S. C.) that further American aid

Death of U. S. Naval Attache In Austrian Tunnel Unsolved

Vienna, Feb. 24 ((AP).—A trackwalker found the body of U. S. Naval Capt. Eugene Simon Karpe, 45, a friend of Robert A. Vogeler, in a railway tunnel south of Salzburg yesterday. His passport was missing, the body mutilated.

U. S. Army investigators and Austrian police expressed belief he was the victim of an accident. American officials in Washington said they were not eliminating the possibility the officer was slain.

Austrian police said Captian Karpe, en route to the U. S. after three years as U. S. naval attache in Communist Romania, evidently fell from a door of the Arlberg-Orient Express on a curve.

He suffered from gout, which made it difficult for him to stand erect. Despite the absence of the passport, they insisted there was no indication of foul play. His other papers were found in the civilian clothes he wore.

[Captain Karpe was stationed in Washington, attached to the office of the Chief of Naval Operations, from 1933 to 1934, and from June, 1944, to June, 1946, he was with the operational training command at Norfolk, Va. He was a member of the Army-Navy Club here.

[During most of World War II, he commanded destroyers, both in the North African landings and in the Pacific where he won the Legion of Merit. He was last in Washington in November, according to officials of the Army-Navy Club. Records show Captain Karpe was married at St. Matthew's Church here in 1935 to Miss Engracia Freyer. Friends said they were divorced. He listed himself in recent Navy records as unmarried.]

He was an Annapolis classmate of Vogeler, American businessman sentenced by a Hungarian court Tuesday to 15 years in prison on charges of sabotage and spying.

Judge Orders UMW To Trial Monday

By Phone Union

Electric Co. Accused of Unfair Acts

By the United Press

The Communications Workers of America (CIO) notified the Federal Mediation Service yesterday it will file unfair labor practices charges against the Western Electric Co. for "refusal to bargain."

The union, which had scheduled a Nationwide telephone strike for yesterday but postponed it for 60 days at President Truman's request, said the formal charges probably will be filed Monday.

Joseph A. Beirne, union president, said in a telegram to Cyrus S. Ching, Federal Mediation Director, that the company "has demonstrated its contempt for the United States Government by disdaining to participate in meetings here in accordance with your request."

He referred to the company's rejection of Ching's proposal for a joint union-management meeting here in an effort to settle their wage contract dispute. Company officials said they preferred to negotiate in New York, where previous talks had been held.

Western Electric is one of some 25 Bell Telephone System affiliates with which the union has been bargaining, in some cases for months. About 100,000 workers are set to strike and the union says another 220,000 will respect their picket lines.

2 Die in Bomber Crash

Dayton, Ohio, Feb. 24 (U.P.)—Two persons, including a British wing commander, died in the crash here today of an Army B-45 jet bomber. Their names were not disclosed.

By The Associated Press

John L. Lewis' union yesterday was ordered to trial Monday on contempt of court charges growing out of the soft coal strike which is daily bringing the Nation closer to economic paralysis.

Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech wasn't convinced by the United Mine Workers' argument that the judge had illegally issued the no-strike order which 372,000 miners have scorned for two weeks.

Likewise, he brushed aside the union's plea that there should be no trial because each miner was acting individually and disobeying Lewis by not working.

The Government, through Assistant Attorney General H. Graham Morison, drew a picture of growing desperation over the Nation and urged the court to use its "full power and majesty" to get digging started again if it finds the union guilty. Previous contempt cases have cost the UMW $2,130,000.

Meantime, President Truman talked coal in a "routine" way, as Defense Secretary Johnson put it, with his Cabinet at their weekly meeting. But the White House said there would be no new move there. If there was any hope that mining would resume Monday it lay in the negotiations between the union and the soft coal operators.

The miners say they'll only work under contract. Bargaining for a new contract was in its ninth day. Judge Keech has ordered it to continue.

But even this forlorn hope appeared dimmer when Lewis left for Springfield, Ill., because of the fatal shooting of a brother, Thomas A. Lewis, 67. The coroner's office called the death a suicide due to ill health.

Industrial layoffs due to coal shortages picked up speed. More than 150,000 persons will be out of work by Monday, in addition to the miners. A new cold wave headed for Ohio and areas east of there.

Communists tried their propaganda on hungry miners, using food as a persuader. Miners took the food and said the accompanying literature had no effect on them.

UMW Local 5600 at Muse, Pa., refused a cargo of canned goods from New York City bearing Communist pamphlets. It was given out nearby anyway.

One miner said as he carried away some cans: "We're not Communists. We're not going to be influenced by something to eat."

The union was summoned before Judge Keech to "show cause" why it shouldn't be tried because the miners refused to obey the court. Lewis himself was not named in the action. The union told the court that its officers had tried to get the walkout stopped.

Morison urged that the trial start today, but Welly K. Hopkins, chief UMW attorney, objected and Keech set it for Monday as originally suggested.

Morison told the court that the bituminous mines had not increased their output despite the antistrike order first issued February 11 under the Taft-Hartley Act. Keech has under advisement the Government's proposal to stretch his injunction into a full 80-day period allowed by the Taft-Hartley law.

Morison pleaded for speed, saying: "At least 20 States have adopted emergency measures to take care of the coal supply. Virtually all of the Nation's cities have the same problem."

Hopkins was advised that the union could have a jury trial and he said he would decide about this later.

The union attorney contended that the back-to-work order, which has been extended to March 3, was "involuntary servitude" and accordingly was unconstitutional.

The union, he said, has done nothing to encourage the strike or its continuance.

Charged with civil and criminal contempt, the UMW is subject, if convicted, to any punishment that Keech decides is merited. Similar contempt cases in 1946 and 1948 resulted in fines of $710,000 and $1,420,000—doubled for the second offense. Neither was in Keech's court.

The strike's blight spread fast. Since about the time the contract expired last June, soft coal production has been nearly 200 million tons below the output of the same period the previous year, a comparison showed.

Most recent official figures on stockpiles were for December 31 when 45 million tons were on hand—enough for a normal 32 days. Estimates since the strike became complete have ranged downward from two weeks or 15 days' supply, but rationing and use curtailment has stretched these meager amounts.

The St. Louis Hospital Council reported that it had sent Lewis an urgent plea to help provide coal and got back a suggestion that it urge the coal companies to sign a contract.

The rival Progressive Mine Workers Union in Illinois, also on strike, promised help for St. Louis hospitals. Some coal on hand was being sent.

Another wire—from the board of Allegheny County commissioners in Pittsburgh—requested Lewis to allow a few mines to work near there because the board said only 3000 tons were available against the normal daily need of 7000 to 10,000 tons. This went unanswered.

Pittsburgh's story was typical of a number of cities which took measures to stretch their coal as far as possible. There were dimouts, closed schools and restrictions to essential uses.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, which is a big coal carrier, announced it is laying off 1729 more employes Tuesday, which will make a total of 9700 idled.

The Norfolk & Western Railway said another 829 of its employes got furlough notices, making a total of 5777.

The New Haven Railroad suspended 25 passenger trains yesterday.

T. A. Lewis, Kin of John L., Called Suicide

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 24 (AP).—Thomas A. Lewis, 67, younger brother of mine chief John L. Lewis, was found dead today and Deputy Coroner Catherine Rutherford said Lewis shot himself because of ill health.

Mrs. Rutherford said Lewis suffered a severe heart attack yesterday. He had been ill for some time. The body was discovered in a second-floor bathtub by Lewis' wife, Leonore. A revolver was near by.

Besides John L., three other brothers and two sisters survive. They are A. D. "Denny" Lewis, president of United Mine Workers District 50; Howard, assistant superintendent of the old Ben Coal Mine at Benton, Ill.; Ray, secretary-treasurer of UMW District 17, Charleston, W. Va.; Hattie, a nurse, and Mrs. Zarah Elizabeth Collins.

Thomas Lewis was a retired Immigration Service employe. His death was the second in the family in six weeks. Mrs. Ann Louisa Lewis, mother of Thomas, John L., and the surviving brothers and sisters, died January 12 in Springfield at 91.

relatively mild in its consequences.

The laboratory findings, Dr. Huebner stressed, are applicable only to investigation of cases in the Woodmont School sector, in North Arlington.

"It does not follow," he declared, "that other cases of sporadic, febrile (with fever) illness in the Washington area are necessarily due to influenza."

Though the ailment appeared to be spreading to other sectors of the county and to Alexandria, yesterday school authorities said the incidence was subsiding some in those areas where it struck earliest.

Dr. Henry C. Bradford, Fairfax County health officer, reported scattered incidences of absenteeism from schools due to virus infections. At Burgundy Farm Country Day School, southeast of Alexandria, 35 of the school's 104 pupils were out sick with the upper respiratory infection.

The ailment also attacked the school's two cooks, and half of the staff's eight teachers. This meant that the older pupils, from the fourth, fifth and sixth grades pitched in to get out the lunches for themselves and for the first three grades.

In Alexandria, Dr. T. F. McGough, city health officer, said he was "encouraged" by the relatively good attendances for the past few days. Earlier this week, he noted, a few of the schools had 40 percent absentee rates.

The virus ailment brings high fever, often accompanied by nausea, sore throat and headache. Other seasonal ailments noted in the school systems include strep throats and intestinal disorders.

Although Washington has had its share of seasonal illnesses, the Virginia 'flu' has not invaded here, at least in any outbreak stage, local health authorities said last night.

On a national scale, Public Health Service reported yesterday that influenza is spreading over the U. S. in epidemic stages.

For the week ending last Saturday, 16,233 new cases were recorded, more than twice the number reported the previous week and three times that recorded for the corresponding week of last year.

So far this year, the report showed, there have been 49,640 cases, as compared to 32,208 during the comparable period of last year.

Hardest hit was Texas, with 10,980 new cases. Virginia was second, with 2259 influenza cases.

N. & W. Railroad Idles 829 More Employes

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 24 (AP).—The Norfolk & Western Railway announced today another 829 employes have been handed furlough notices, bringing to 5777 the number of N&W workers furloughed since the soft coal strike started February 6.

The N&W said the 829 have either already been laid off or will be furloughed by March 1. No breakdown by cities or departments was made. The layoffs extended over the entire system.

In Freight Bid

Eastern Rails Propose Rate Cut on Steel

New York, Feb. 24. (AP)—Eastern railroads proposed a cut in their freight rates on steel today to recapture business lost to trucks.

John J. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the Traffic Executive Association-Eastern Railroads, said the roads are "proposing substantial reductions in rail rates" on certain iron and steel articles "to meet the competition of unregulated as well as regulated highway carriers."

The amount of the cut and the items covered will be determined by the railroads after a meeting March 9 in Pittsburgh between the railroads, steel and iron producers and consumers, and the public.

The rate schedules will be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission and would not become final until approved by it.

The move is regarded as a direct bid to lure shippers away from trucks and back to the rails—business that was lost as a result of steadily increasing freight rates and changes made by the steel mills in quoting their prices FOB mill plus freight.

Similar moves to lower rates on specific products such as milk and potatoes have been made in recent months by Eastern roads operating in the territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers.

NLRB Slaps Down Denham

ered by the board directs General Counsel Denham to carry out enforcement procedures in the courts "in full accordance with" the board's instructions.

The second important revision retains for the board veto power over any appointment, promotion, or dismissal made by the general counsel in any of the NLRB's regional offices.

There was no official comment forthcoming from the members of the board, but there was no doubt among NLRB staff officials that the revisions were meant to "clip the wings" of Denham, who last month kicked out into the public the long smouldering private feud between the board and the general counsel over authority and functions of each.

Denham, speaking before a building trades employers' group in New York City in mid-January, charged that the NLRB panel was undercutting the Taft-Hartley Act with pro-labor rulings. He urged employers not to accept adverse NLRB decisions, but to appeal them to the higher Federal courts.

In issuing the revisions of delegated powers yesterday, the board declared that the changes were originally discussed by the board with Denham in September and October of 1949. Yesterday, one NLRB officer suggested that Denham's January attack on the board might have been a move by the general counsel to head off the revisions.

Friends of Denham, on the other hand, insisted last night that the board's revision was a "slap" at Denham in retaliation for his New York speech. Pro-Denham officials asserted the board's action was another instance of "sabotage" of the Taft-Hartley Act. They expressed the belief that Denham would have a statement "with strong feeling" to make when he gets back to Washington.

General Counsel Denham, attending a conference of NLRB regional officers in Atlantic City, declined to comment when reached by phone last night. He said he'd be back to his office on Monday, and probably would have something to say at the time.

20 Hurt in Chicago El Train Collision

Chicago, Feb. 24 (AP).—Two rush-hour elevated trains collided tonight, shaking up some 900 persons. At least 20 were injured, 9 of them were taken to hospitals.

One train stalled and the second rammed into it at a partially dismantled station. Police and fire squads labored two hours removing passengers, hampered by ice, snow and a biting 8-degree temperature.

Prices, Wages Cut by GM; Living Cost Off

General Motors cut prices and wages yesterday as the Government announced that the United States cost of living in mid-January was 0.4 percent less than mid-December and 2.3 percent less than a year ago.

Here in Washington, mid-January retail food prices were the lowest since July, 1947, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported. These prices averaved 4 percent lower than a year before, and 0.9 percent lower than the previous month.

The decline here was led by egg prices, which dropped 15.8 in the month from December 15 to January 15 to the lowest January level since 1942. Lower prices of meats, poultry and fish, which dropped 2.9 percent from December, also contributed. Coffee prices reached a new high for the eighth consecutive month, the BLS index listing the average price here as 76.2 cents a pound.

Wages for 362,000 GM workers are tied directly to the Federal price index.

In Detroit, GM headquarters announced price cuts ranging from $10 to $40 on all its cars and trucks, effective immediately.

Simultaneously, the company announced a 2-cents-an-hour reduction in the cost-of-living allowance for 290,000 hour-wage employes and a $10 quarterly reduction in bonuses paid to 72,000 salaried workers.

The pay cuts go into effect March 1. They are automatic under the cost-of-living adjustment formula, as stipulated in GM's contract with the CIO United Auto Workers' Union.

CIO Assails Wage Cut

Soon after the pay cuts were announced, the CIO union issued a statement denouncing GM's action as "morally indefensible" in view of the company's record-breaking profits.

The union served notice it will press for a "substantial wage increase," plus pension-medical programs, when contract talks open next April. The present contract expires at the end of May.

GM headquarters declined to comment on the union's criticism.

On prices, the company announced the following cuts: $10 on Chevrolet, $15 on Pontiac, $15 to $20 on Oldsmobile, $15 to $22 on Buick, and $25 to $40 on Cadillic. GM trucks were cut $10 to $25.

Exactly the same reductions were made February 25, 1949, and May 23, 1949—both linked to the official index provided by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Although Government figures showed consumer prices on January 15 were 2.3 percent lower than a year ago, they were still 25.2 percent higher than they were in June, 1946, when OPA price controls were banished.

Consumer Prices Off .4 Percent

In its report, the Labor Department also noted that from mid-December to mid-January consumer prices dropped .4 percent.

Officials said, however, that the continued over-all decline in consumer prices was tempered by the fact that a dip is normal for this season of the year—the result of January bargain sales and other factors.

Officials said wholesale prices, which usually foreshadow retail price trends, have been climbing in recent weeks but have not yet been felt by the public.

High Court Delays Arguments in 2 Cases

The Supreme Court yesterday postponed for two weeks arguments on racial segregation and the Texas-Louisiana Tidelands oil case.

The Tidelands arguments, scheduled to begin March 13, will be heard March 27. The segregation cases were postponed from March 20 to April 3.

DPs Quitting Farms, Senate Probe Told

Two delegations of Maryland county and Virginia State and county officials protested to Congress yesterday against the operation of the displaced persons law in those States.

One after another they all told me the same story. About 20 to 25 percent of the immigrants aren't working out well, they said. Many leave within a few days or stay several months, and then leave without warning, a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee was told.

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) asked several witnesses if the farmer sponsors for the DPs realized that under the law they were responsible for the support of the families they sponsored, even though they left their farms. That disclosure seemed a complete surprise.

One witness, R. B. Hudgins, Appomattox, Va., county agent, and brother of a Virginia Supreme Court judge, seriously "questioned the wisdom" of admitting more.

Suspects Some As Spies

He said he was suspicious that some placed on Virginia farms were spies because "everything they say is favorable to Europe and unfavorable to this country." He said he would furnish names of those he suspected.

Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) asserted that many of the DPs were admitted on forged papers, and called them "masters of fraud."

Members of the former DP committee of Anne Arundel County, Md., who resigned in a body two weeks, ago, appeared. They complained:

1. That there was no control over the DPs assigned to farms.

2. That various church bodies brought in DP families that the county groups knew nothing about.

Rates of Pay Vary

Witnesses brought out that the rates of pay varied widely among farmers. One dairy farmer who had eight families, paid as high as $100 and $110 a month, while others paid as little as $40.

One of the strongest complaints came from a "southside Virginia" farm owned by former Gov. William M. Tuck. It was made by L. M. Walker, State agriculture commissioner.

Governor Tuck, Walker said, wanted "to find some highly worthwhile cases," so Walker got in touch with Edward M. O'Connor of the Displaced Persons Commission.

"We didn't do that in most cases," Walker said, "but there is only one Governor of Virginia."

Tuck Says To Hell With 'Em

Walker and others met the DP family in Richmond and drove them to the Tuck farm, "in Virginia's south side near the Carolina line."

There, Governor Tuck had "a big pot of stew on the fire," Walker said, with his neighbors gathered to welcome the DP family. Tuck bought the family a cow, "the Tuck farm not being a cow farm," Walker said, some hens, a radio and other comforts.

Governor Tuck paid his family from $40 to $45 a month, Walker said, but a "kink showed up somewhere." Another DP family in the neighborhood had been kicked out and went to Philadelphia, Walker said, and they sent for the family at the Tuck farm. So they left too.

"The Governor's attitude is 'to hell with them,'" said Walker. "He doesn't think the DP program worthwhile."

'Publicity Medium'

Humphrey Urges End Of Byrd Unit

By The Associated Press

Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) demanded yesterday that Congress abolish the Byrd Committee on Non-Essential Government Expenditures.

Humphrey, who heads Americans for Democratic Action, told the Senate the committee, of which Senator Byrd (D., Va.) is chairman, "serves no useful purpose and is used only as a publicity medium." He introduced legislation to abolish the committee.

Byrd has criticized President Truman's Government spending program. He has called for slashing the Administration's $42,439,000,000 budget to 36 million dollars.

The Virginia Senator has been at political odds with Mr. Truman, who told a White House visitor several months ago that there were too many Byrds in Congress.

When Republicans won control of the Eightieth Congress, Byrd was the only Democrat in either House to retain chairmanship of a committee.

Humphrey has supported what Mr. Truman calls his "Fair Deal" program.

Byrd was not on the floor when Humphrey, a freshman Senator, launched his attack on the nine-year-old congressional economy committee. It includes 12 members of Congress, including the heads of Senate and House Tax and Appropriations Committees, the Secretary of the Treasury and Director of the Budget.

Humphrey told the Senate that the Byrd committee, a joint Senate-House group, has "spent over $100,000 to date in appropriated funds, plus $250,000 worth of time and effort of the executive branch of the Government in compiling data, plus undetermined additional funds for printing."

He said the Byrd committee "deals only in generalities and violates the purpose for which it was created by wasting public funds rather than conserving them." He said its work duplicates that of the Senate Expenditures Committee, headed by Senator McClellan (D., Ark.).

Truman Arranges Trip to Missouri For 3 June Affairs

President Truman completed plans yesterday for a weekend trip to Missouri next June.

He discussed his itinerary at a White House meeting with his cousin, Maj. Gen. Ralph E. Truman (retired) and Brig. Gen. John A. Harris, Missouri's adjutant general.

Mr. Truman will fly to Columbia, Mo., June 9, to receive an honorary degree from the University of Missouri. The same afternoon, he will fly on to St. Louis for the annual reunion of the Thirty-fifth Division Association, his World War I outfit.

On Saturday, June 30, he will speak in St. Louis at the dedication of a memorial to President Thomas Jefferson.

School Failure Seen in Ban On Religion

In an effort to keep religion out of the classrooms teachers are failing to explain the moving forces behind modern civilization, the Rev. Albert T. Mollegen of the Virginia Theological Seminary yesterday told a group of private school educators.

He said that because teachers must instruct from the point of view of some kind of philosophy they have been forced to substitute for religion a secularist attitude toward life.

This means that students cannot be made aware of the religious continuity that runs through Western civilization, he said.

Sex Education Discussed

Religion in the curriculum was among the subjects discussed at the opening-day program of the twenty-fourth annual conference of the Secondary Education Board. A thousand headmasters and teachers represented 300 schools at the conference, which will wind up today at the Statler Hotel.

The teachers also took up the controversial question of sex education and discussed new methods in teaching art, English and the sciences.

Dr. Mollegen declared teachers can present a religious view without "confining themselves to narrow pious materials."

Robert A. Moss, teacher of ethics at Groton School, Groton, Mass., said that inevitably students raise the question of "where are we going, why are we here, what is the point of our lives?"

Dogma Doesn't Give Answer

The answer, he said, can be found only in religion, not as a body of dogma, but as a point of view.

Edgar N. Sanford of Westover School, Middlebury, Conn., said the schools "with but few exceptions" are "sidestepping" the issue of sex education. Where there is training "it is inadequate," he declared.

Speaking at a luncheon session, Dr. Paul E. Smith of the United States Office of Education said the exchange teacher program between countries is "humanizing international relations."

"What better method is there to reach into the hearts and minds of young people than by exchanging teachers?" he asked.

The other major conference speaker, President Katharine E. McBride of Bryn Mawr College, said education should have a variety of purposes to meet a "diversity of aims."

Record $144 Million Budget Passed by Maryland Senate

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 24 (AP).—The Senate passed Governor Lane's $144,203,564 appropriations bill today.

Only three votes were cast against the administration's spending program. All were by Republicans: Minority Leader Kimble (Allegany), Hoff (Carroll) and McLaughlin (Washington).

Senator Carter (D., Balto. 3d), who has frequently attacked the budget, was ill at home and missed the session.

Senator Monroe (R., Charles) declared he unwillingly voted for "Maryland's worst budget." But like Kimble, he conceded opposition would be futile.

The bill, immediately taken up by the House, involves a total of $144,203,564 in appropriations. Of these, $143,557,308 would make up the 1951 fiscal year budget.

Twice the issue of a veterans' bonus crept into Senate deliberations. Senator Phoebus (R., Somerset), co-sponsor of a 90 million dollar bonus bill, demanded assurances from Senate President Byrnes (D., Balto. 5th) that supplements to the budget were included in the appropriations measure.

Byrnes said they were, but reminded Phoebus that action on a bonus must be deferred until the budget has passed both houses. This would meet a constitutional requirement recently cited by Attorney General Hall Hammond.

Again Phoebus inquired about a House bill that would dedicate surplus revenues beyond two million dollars to tax deduction. His bonus contemplates use of all sales tax receipts over 20 million dollars to service the bond issue which would finance payments to veterans. To scrutinize possible effects of the House bill he had action postponed until tomorrow.

Wallace Says Party Is Not Puppet of Reds

Chicago, Feb. 24 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace told Progressive Party leaders tonight they are in position to win "a campaign for peace" if they make it clear the third party is not a Communist puppet.

He called for official public talks between the United States and Russia to reach agreement renouncing use of atomic energy as a destructive weapon. He urged United Nations inspection to enforce such a pact.

Also, he proposed, North Atlantic Pact nations should declare publicly they will not be the first to use atomic weapons.

The 1948 Progressive nominee for President declared "the fearful and trembling ones" have deserted his "Gideon's army" but millions of Americans will replace them. Time and recent events are "on our side," he said.

His keynote address was prepared for the opening session of the second national convention of the party, at Chicago's Ashland auditorium.

About 1200 Progressives from 35 states are mapping 1950 Congressional election plans at the three-day meeting.

Acheson Glad Of Loyalty Investigation

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday told his press conference he welcomed the Senate's decision to hold hearings on loyalty charges involving some of his department's personnel.

Meanwhile, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee scheduled a meeting for Monday morning to appoint a subcommittee to sift charges that there is a Communist spy ring operating within the department.

The charges were leveled by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, jr. (R., Wis.), and the Senate later passed a resolution authorizing the Foreign Relations group to inquire into the charges and directing it to subpena loyalty records of suspected individuals.

McMahon, Tydings Mentioned

Senate Administration leaders and Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) declined to name the Democrats who will be selected to make up the special committee. The names of Senators Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) and Millard E. Tdyings (D., Md.) have been widely rumored, however, as the probable Administration choices.

Republicans are understood to have selected Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.) as the third member of an expected three-man subcommittee.

The chairmanship is believed most likely to fall into the hands of Tydings. McMahon is believed to be extremely reluctant to undertake such an added responsibility at this time.

In all probability the subcommittee will be faced with one of the most ticklish legislative-versus-executive battles in the history of the country. The Foreign Relations group has already been directed by the Senate to subpena loyalty files of those involved.

President Truman, through his press conference, has made it clear that he will direct the State Department not to comply with the subpena. Senate Majority Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Neb.) has suggested that the subpena be served upon Acheson, and that noncompliance be met with charges of contempt of the Senate against the Secretary of State.

Court Ruling Possible

Such a move could throw the whole matter into the courts, and thus the Nation might have a clear-cut decision on the powers of the legislative branch to enforce its demands for executive papers.

Secretary Acheson made it clear at his press conference yesterday that decision on whether or not the loyalty files would be surrendered to the committee was up to President Truman. He also expressed confidence in all members of the State Department staff.

"In fact," he said, "there is now no one in the department who has been found to be disloyal by the President's Loyalty Board or who has been held to be a bad security risk."

In answer to questions, the Secretary stated that although the department has not been furnished with a list of any names of those suspected, the charges aired were very similar to those mentioned by a member of the House Appropriations Committee in 1948. The description of the cases, he said appeared to be so similar—possibly identical—that it could hardly be a coincidence. The names of those suspected in 1948 were never made public.

Trujillo Signs Bill Ending War Powers

Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, Feb. 24 (AP).—President Rafael Trujillo today signed a bill revoking extraordinary powers to declare war which Congress had granted him December 26.

Repeal of the war powers had been asked by Trujillo to promote use of consultative measures for settlement of Caribbean political disputes.

He originally requested the powers in charging Cuba and Guatemala with permitting Dominican exiles to conspire against him.

Nurse Says Sander Minimized His Act

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 24 (U.P.).—The nurse whose report put Dr. Hermann N. Sander on trial as a mercy slayer said today that he compared the injection of air into the veins of a dying woman with a minor traffic violation.

Josephine Connor told the court Sander admitted killing Mrs. Abbie C. Borroto, 59, at the request of her husband, and quoted him as saying he saw no reason why the matter should be brought up later.

She said that Medical Referee Robert E. Biron asked Dr. Sander whether he realized he had broken the law.

"Dr. Sander said 'yes,' but he had broken laws before—he had been through stop signs—and nothing ever came of it," Miss Connor said.

Miss Connor was the fourth prosecution witness in the first degree murder trial.

The State attempted to bring in testimony that Reginald Borroto had signed a sworn statement after Dr. Sander's arrest December 29 saying he had nothing to do with his wife's death. The defense had the statement stricken from the record, however, on the grounds Borroto's testimony must come first.

Miss Connor repeated how she had taken a dictated memorandum from Dr. Sander December 12. The memorandum, she said, told how the doctor put 40 CCs of air into Mrs. Borroto's bloodstream. She said she forgot about the matter after that and it was not called to her attention again until December 29.

Medical Referee Called

She said she told her superiors about the notation and that Dr. Biron was called. He came to her office and a few minutes later Dr. Sander entered. Dr. Biron questioned him about the nature of Mrs. Borroto's death, she said.

"Dr. Biron said this was murder," Miss Connor testified. "Dr. Sander said he thought the law should be changed. Dr. Biron said, 'Why didn't you change it first, before you did it?' I don't remember any particular answer.

"Dr. Sander said he assumed the medical association probably would reprimand him for his act and tell him not to do it again. Dr. Biron said it already was out of the hands of the medical profession, that he had called the sheriff.

"Dr. Sander said he did not think he'd done anything that was morally wrong. He said it more than once. He didn't get ruffled or anything."

Envoy to Ireland

Ambassador Status Given To Garrett

George A. Garrett of Washington, this country's envoy to Ireland, yesterday was designated for promotion from the rank of Minister to that of Ambassador.

Garrett

This is in accord with the elevation recently of the United States diplomatic establishment in Ireland to the rank of Embassy.

Garrett called at the White House yesterday and received word of the promotion directly from President Truman. Later the White House sent the nomination to the Senate for confirmation.

President Truman nominated Garrett to be Minister to Ireland in April, 1947.

At that time Garrett, whose home is at 2503 30th st. nw., was a resident partner in the investment firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, president of the board of trustees of Emergency Hospital, and vice president and a director of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Arnold Makes Brotherhood Week Address

Brotherhood Week was observed yesterday with special events in school assemblies, synagogues and Government departments.

Thurman W. Arnold, former assistant attorney general, spoke at the annual Brotherhood sabbath service of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

Attending were 50 Christians and Jews taking part in a weekend interfaith seminar sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches and the inter-religious department of the Anti-Defamation League.

Special Brotherhood Week programs were offered at the Murch and Slowl elementary, and Gordon and Jefferson junior high schools in the District and at the Mount Vernon School in Alexandria.

Films on brotherhood themes were shown continuously at the Department of Agriculture in Beltsville and at Selective Service headquarters.

The seminar group will attend services today at Adas Israel Congregation, 6th and Eye sts. nw., and will visit the Hillel House of George Washington University, 2129 F st. nw., this evening.

The Rev. Stephen G. Spottswood, president of the district chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will speak to the group on "Interracial Progress in Washington," during luncheon at Inspiration House, 1867 Kalorama rd. nw.

On Sunday the group will attend services at the Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw. At a final luncheon meeting Sunday at Mary Graydon Hall on the American University campus, the group will discuss their experiences.

Belvedere Apartment Rent Boost Approved

A 7.28 percent rent increase on 102 apartments at the Belvedere, 1301 Massachusetts ave., nw., was approved yesterday by District Rent Control Examiner James G. Tyson. His action becomes final March 5 unless protest is made to the rent control administrator.

With the increase, rents would range from $43.50 to $88 a month. They now range from $39.50 to $80. Fidelity Storage Co., owner of the apartment building, had asked a 12.23 percent increase.

Willie James Held for Jury In Slaying

A coroner's jury yesterday held Willie Lee James, of no fixed address, for action of the grand jury in the stabbing death Wednesday of Floyd L. Turner, 34, a construction worker from Stanley, Va.

The stabbing occurred during a quarrel on 7th st. nw. between James, a former professional fighter known as "King Kong," and Turner and his brother, Ellis L. Turner, according to the latter's testimony.

Ellis Turner said James came up to him and Floyd as they were standing in front of 1123 7th st. nw., asked "what the hell" they were doing, and called them names.

He testified he struck James, who, he said, struck back at him. When his brother "went into" James, "each one got a lick in," Turner testified, and his brother fell to the sidewalk, his neck gashed. He was pronounced dead a few minutes later at Freedmen's Hospital.

James did not testify at the coroner's inquest.

AT LAST: Long in Walt Disney's mind and in his drawing boards has been "Cinderella," which arrives this morning at Keith's. Here's the fairy tale princess dressing for her homely chores with the help of two energetic birds. In honor of the opening, Keith's is screening the picture ten times today; doors open at 8:30 ayem.

White House, Hoover Plagued By Mosquitoes (All Democrats)

By Frank Carey
Associated Press Science Editor

Virginia Beach, Va., Feb. 24 (AP).—The untold story of a great "mosquito mystery" in the White House during the Hoover administration was disclosed today.

Dr. F. C. Bishopp, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and one of the world's leading authorities on insects, told it to a reporter during a joint meeting of the American and Virginia State Mosquito Control Associations.

Seems that the mosquitoes—presumably all Democrats—were so thick around the White House lawn that the Hoovers and any visitors couldn't go outdoors at night for a breath of air without being plagued.

The insects were getting inside the nation's number one household, too, so Government mosquito fighters were summoned.

Finally, the Government men found this:

All around the Treasury Department building, next door to the White House, were "sort of catchbasins" where water had stagnated. And, in the water, were thousands of wiggly mosquito larvae—the forerunners of full blown adult buzzers.

The situation was rectified by dousing the catchbasins with oil. Incidentally, the name of the mosquito is "culex pipens"—a common household pest.

The scientist mentioned the incident in pointing out that mosquitoes are apt to breed anywhere, all depending upon their type.

Robert S. Lyle Heads Sidwell Friends School

The appointment of Robert Simpson Lyle as headmaster of Sidwell Friends School was announced yesterday by J. Austin Stone, chairman of the board of trustees.

Lyle, acting headmaster since last August, was the unanimous choice of the trustees. He succeeds the late Edwin C. Zavits.

Lyle, 43, is a native of Englewood, N. J., and holds degrees from Dartmouth and Cornell.

He taught for a year at St. George's School, Newport, R. I., and from 1930 to 1934 at Peddie School, Hightstown, N. J.

He came to Sidwell Friends School in 1934 as a teacher of Latin and football coach. He had played guard on the Dartmouth varsity.

Lyle became assistant to the headmaster. In 1942, he left the faculty to enter the Navy as a lieutenant, and served as intelligence officer in the Pacific, accumulating seven battle stars.

He remained in the Navy until last summer when he returned to Sidwell.

One on the Aisle—

The Animals Steal Cinderella's Show

By Richard L. Coe

WALT DISNEY'S "Cinderella" is at Keith's and the news is good.

The cartoon master once more is at his best in the animal kingdom. He has conceived some fresh, appealing creatures to help spin the fairy tale romance to its ineffable finale; there are a number of sugary tunes along the way, and one leaves his happy world with a feeling of sublime envy.

The middle-aged Master's way with cartoons is too accepted a triumph to go into at length, but now that he has left flesh and blood human beings for a spell, one must note that the change is welcome. His experiments of using live actors with his whimsical creatures haven't always been satisfying to the diehards who can never forget the wonder of his "Snow White." "Cinderella" still doesn't approach "Snow White," probably because he was there breaking totally fresh ground. Nothing like it had been managed before and certainly nothing like it can be expected until his fur and feather people take over such matters as traffic, taxes and other mundane matters of everyday life.

The Disney people for "Cinderella" aren't half so beguiling as the animals which make their triumphs and disasters possible. Cinderella herself, for instance is more like the cartoon strip ideal female than a personality on her own. Her stepmother is traditional and her Prince Charming is a pretty, Milt Caniff hero decked out for "the Student Prince." In short, his human beings are pink, ideal, sugary; I'm not saying this is wrong, for in the ideal world of fairy tale dreamers these dewy folk may well exist, happy things.

But in the animal kingdom, Disney is the wonderful observer. Once again, they have their humanized personalities—the naughty cat is a triumph, one Lucifer, a real villain and, unlike a certain cat I know, rife with personality. Then there's Gus-Gus, a dopey fellow, Bruno, the dog, some likable bluebirds and some choosy, merry fowl.

Recognizing his own preference for animals over mere human beings, Disney tells Charles Perrault's version of the story with his creatures in the spotlight. What happens to Cinderella, her greedy sisters, their conniving mother and the rest happens largely through the labors of the animals.

Thousands of Drawings

The songs—by Mack David, Jerry Livingstone and Al Hoffman—are right on the sweet little button. You've heard "Bibbidi-Bobbidi-Boo," and there's Cinderella's own "Work Song," a production number, or so it would be elsewhere; "A Dream Is A Wish Your Heart Makes," and a melodic ditty "So This Is Love." They're all what the pictures order—melodic, reminiscent, romantic.

To give credit to the hundreds of technicians who labored on this long-planned "Cinderella" is beyond this column. Suffice it to say that the 125,000 drawings which Disney estimates are shown on the screen probably sprang from more than a million efforts to piece the idea together.

Of the countless versions there have been of "Cinderella," it seems likely that Disney's will be as lasting as the one you first heard at your mother's knee.

"CINDERELLA" A Walt Disney feature-length cartoon based on the Charles Perrault fairy tale. Story by William Peed, Ted Sears, Erdman Penner, Winston Hibler and Harry Reeves. Directed by Wilfred Jackson, Hamilton Luske, Clyde Geronimi. Musical direction by Oliver Wallace and Paul Smith, with songs by Mack David, Jerry Lewinestone and Al Hoffman. Production supervised by Ben Sharpsteen. Distributed by RKO Radio Pictures. At Keith's.

DON'T LET the local shortages worry you about attending the theaters . . . Most of the downtown houses operate on oil or gas and Keith's has both oil and coal, prepared, evidently, for any emergency . . . Only 10 percent of the outlying theaters use coal and most of them are well stocked at the moment, a rapid survey reveals.

THE COAL emergency, however, does affect tonight's performance of "The Royal Family" by the Thespian Study Club at Armstrong High . . . Instead, this performance will be postponed to Monday night at 8:40 at the same school.

THE PRIORITY SCHOOL Players will repeat the original play, "How I Wonder What You Are," by the Rev. Dom Stephen Reid and Michael Murray tomorrow night in the Priory School gym, 14th and South Dakota ave., at 8:30, with Co-author Reid directing.

GEORGE, of the Statler's Embassy Room, had his eyes on stalks the other night . . . In the posh room at various tables, he could point to: Dorothy Lamour, Frances Langford, Phil Regan, Gene "no smoking" Autry, Louise Albritton, Jo Stafford, Liberace and a coupla news writers.

TODAY: Margaret O'Brien (not glimpsed at the Embassy Room—a Carlton guest) says hello at Hecht's downtown 10 ayem and Silver Spring 2:30 . . . The C. U. players visit Ed Moore's Theater Time, WGAY, 12:15 . . . Maud Howell Smith readies for tomorrow afternoon's party for the One-Act Play Tournament, which opens Tuesday night . . . Two New York casualties: "Alive and Kicking," the revue in which Jack Cole and his dancers scored, after 46 performances, and Giraudoux' "The Enchanted," directed by George S. Kaufman, after 45 performances.

Truman Urged To Name Civil Rights Board

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Appointment of a presidential commission to study the status of American civil liberties and propose how to make them secure was urged yesterday.

The recommendation was made by delegates attending the third annual Civil Liberties Conference sponsored by the National Civil Liberties Clearing House at the Hotel 2400.

The resolution followed talks by a former attorney general, a spokesman of university teachers and a leader of Americans for Democratic Action, all decrying inroads on individual freedoms.

Former Attorney General Francis Biddle concentrated his fire on the Federal loyalty program. He said it lacked many safeguards usual in hearing procedures.

Biddle deplored limitation of evidence, declaring that although present regulations permit any evidence to be placed before the board, another section amends this to "any evidence that the board deems proper."

Cross examination is permitted, but since informants are not produced there "is no chance to cross-examine them," Biddle said. Moreover, Government workers have no subpena powers in such hearings, he added.

A complete hearing record is maintained, but it omits the names and qualifications of informants, Biddle declared.

The conference adopted a resolution against putting the loyalty program on a permanent basis.

Another speaker, Joseph L. Rauh, jr., chairman of the national executive committee, ADA, declared that although America was still far "from a police state," there were certain danger signals which should be thoroughly studied. He first proposed the presidential commission.

Three danger signals he listed as:

1. The request by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which spent six million dollars in 1939, and now asks for an appropriation of 58 million dollars.

2. FBI "tapping of telephone wires practically without supervision." Rauh quoted a news story stating that the Attorney General has never rejected an FBI recommendation for a tap.

3. False testimony by an FBI agent "that recordings (or wire tapping)) had been destroyed solely as a matter of departmental routine," during the Coplon trial, Rauh said.

The Waiting Game

President Truman is marking time while plants are closing for lack of coal, thousands of workers are being laid off, and many States and municipalities are being forced to take emergency measures to conserve coal supplies. Mr. Truman was well aware that the procedures for dealing with strikes under the Taft-Hartley Act were time-consuming, and could be used more effectively to avert a threatened emergency than to deal with an existing one. Yet he waited until coal shortages had become alarming before invoking the emergency provisions of the act, after his proposal to submit the dispute to a voluntary fact-finding board had been rejected by John L. Lewis.

Then, after it became evident that the miners intended to defy the Taft-Hartley back-to-work injunction he again waited—much too long—to see whether the operators and Lewis could be persuaded to reach an agreement before giving the nod to the Department of Justice to institute contempt proceedings against the union. And he is still marking time, waiting for a court decision on the contempt charges which may come early next week. Meantime, the coal strike has developed into an open insurrection, encouraged by the President's tactics and his apparent failure to realize the dangerous potentialities of the miners' defiance of Government orders.

If the contempt charges are sustained and stiff fines imposed on the UMW, we believe that resistance to the back-to-work order will collapse. However, the Government cannot afford to take chances at this critical stage of the conflict. It should be prepared to take the next step, if necessary, namely, seizure of the mines. Yet so far as one knows, the President has made no preparations for dealing with the situation that would arise if the miners, standing on their rights as individuals, refuse to work even if their union is penalized.

The President may hope to score politically by exposing the weaknesses of the T-H emergency provisions for dealing with strikes that imperil the national health and welfare, although it is highly probable that his delay in resorting to the act is partly responsible for its inefficiency in the present instance. In any event there is no excuse for his dilatory handling of a labor dispute that threatens to bring about industrial paralysis and to undermine the foundations of orderly government.

Savings Backlog

Savings bonds in $25 and $50 denominations are purchased almost exclusively by wage earners, and probably constitute the bulk of the reserves available to tide them over periods of unemployment. On the basis of an analysis of Treasury statistics of sales and redemptions Wilfred Lumer, staff economist for the Public Affairs Institute, concludes that the size of this workers' savings backlog may have been greatly overrated. For, while about 34 billion dollars of the Series E bonds are still in the hands of individual savers, a large proportion of holdings are bonds of higher denominations, owned for the most part by persons of means.

Even during the war years, the $25 and $50 bond purchase never amounted to more than 50 percent of total dollar sales, and by June, 1946, nearly half the value of all $25 denominations bought during 1942-45 had been redeemed, while less than a fifth of the value of the $500 and $1000 denominations bought during the same period had been cashed. Notwithstanding sharp postwar declines in purchases of small bonds, nearly a half of the $25 bonds bought in 1945 to 1947 inclusive were cashed within a year of the purchase date.

Information about the ownership of Series E bonds is unfortunately very scanty. But surveys of consumer finances published by the Federal Reserve Board and supported by Treasury statistics of sales and redemptions lead to the conclusion that most of these bonds are held by individuals in the higher income groups. By the beginning of 1949, for example, over 56 percent of all spending units according to Reserve Board estimates, owned no savings bonds, and the value of the holdings of another 25 percent did not exceed $500. About two thirds of the spending units whose money income was less than $3000 had no savings bonds. Moreover, the occupational groups having the highest proportion of spending units without savings bonds are workers, skilled and unskilled, who, as Mr. Lumer says, are most likely to be affected by interruptions in employment and loss of earnings.

In the light of this analysis, we can no longer assume that strikes and furloughs resulting from strikes will not entail sharp declines in consumer spending. For the story of savings bonds redemptions indicates that many workers have already used up their savings, and have few or no reserves to tide them over periods of unemployment.

Verdict in Britain

The only concern that this Administration seems to have entertained about the general election in Britain was that the result would be decisive. Such a result would have meant a strong government, and the need of the moment is strong government. Thus the 14-odd vote margin with which the Labor government has been returned to power is in this sense deeply disappointing. Fourteen votes hardly constitute a working majority, let alone a majority that can keep control without worrying about it. In a parliamentary system, where the executive and the legislative branches are blended, scores of minor officials share with their cabinet chiefs executive as well as parliamentary duties. It is impossible in these circumstances constantly to maintain a full house so as to insure authority in the Commons.

Yet in another sense the close margin of Labor's victory is cause for satisfaction. It may persuade the parties as nothing hitherto has done to consider a national government by coalition so as to explore and tackle a solution of Britain's deep-seated difficulties. Britain is living beyond her means. This has caused an inflation which is not expressed in higher prices because of the controls which have to be clamped upon economic activity and which, to Mr. Hoffman's distress, are producing a closed economy. There can thus be no decontrol till the budget has been reduced drastically. This would be a major operation, and one that could be undertaken only by a national government. If it were done, then some help might be expected from America in relieving the drain abroad on British capital—the drain caused by the necessity of meeting payments on Britain's war debts to India and other countries, otherwise called sterling balances.

The trouble is that the British people are ignorant of the detailed facts of their own situation. And neither party told them these facts in the course of the campaigning. For instance, not a word about America appeared in the Labor Party's manifesto. The omission has nothing to do with a question of gratitude or ingratitude; it is merely a sign of fear in acknowledging that Marshall aid is merely subsidizing a way of living and a system which cannot endure when Marshall aid has been withdrawn. The Conservatives were equally lacking in any recognition of the true inwardness of the British situation. They inveighed against regimentation, but took no real issue with specific items in the Labor government's program, lest the people who benefit from social services withhold their votes out of fear of losing those services under a Conservative administration.

This is contrary to Mr. Churchill's general approach. He has hitherto followed the practice of telling the people the truth because that is the only way of winning support and sustaining leadership. In this election he was blunter than his colleagues, but not so blunt as conditions warranted, or as the caliber of the British people required. For the British are nothing if not realistic. In spite of the enforced division of the national income in behalf of the low-income brackets, the Labor Party has come out of the election with a minority of the popular vote. Why have the British thus disproved the adage that you never shoot Santa Claus? Because, without knowing all the facts, they must have a dim awareness that arithmetic and Santa Claus don't go together in their present situation. Added to their realism the British have a sound political instinct. In spite of the fact that a hundred Communists stood for Parliament, not one has been elected, not even a fellow traveler, and the party gained only 88,000 votes out of 30 million. Likewise they reaffirmed the two-party system by rejecting decisively the Liberal Party's ambitious bid for a third-party role. The verdict should inspire both parties to sink party differences in a spirit of compromise and unite in coping with the emergency.

Tito's Game

At the beginning of the week one might have supposed that the pattern of international relationships was about as complicated as was possible, but it has now been rendered infinitely more complex and uncertain by Yugoslavia's recognition of the "people's republic" of Viet Nam under Ho Chi-minh. As far as American policy is concerned, it is difficult to say whether the event should be entered upon the record as gain or loss. It demonstrates, for one thing, that notwithstanding Tito's very urgent need of American money and American goods, American influence in Belgrade is by no means as powerful as might have been supposed. For the United States has recognized the Viet Nam government of the Emperor Bao Dai, set up under French aegis and given quasi-independent status under the French Union, the new imperial association of former colonies modeled upon the commonwealth.

The French, of course, will be infuriated by Tito's recognition of Ho Chi-minh, and by way of reprisal may try to block a contemplated World Bank loan to Yugoslavia. However, the French are well aware of the heavy stake they have in the continued existence of Titoism as a political force in Europe and in the world. The French have benefited above all other European countries by Tito's rebellion against Moscow. That rebellion has effected a schism in the lower ranks of the French Communist Party and so reduced its power to harass the government and to impede French industrial and commercial recovery.

One certainty is that the game of power now going on in the world is not two-sided but three-sided. Another is that Tito may be trusted in all circumstances, and whether in Europe or in Asia, to play his own game rather than ours. That is something about which we must have no illusion. As for Ho Chi-minh, he is an old Comintern agent, but he has in his forces a large number of people who are more Nationalist than Communist, so that Ho by obtaining Yugoslav recognition may be demonstrating his need to keep one foot in either camp.

Disembodied Spirit

There is nothing more fundamental to a democratic society than equality of economic opportunity. For five years, and more, this newspaper has given editorial support to the efforts of those in and out of Congress who have sought to secure such equality as a right guaranteed by the Government of the United States. It can be effectively secured, of course, only by a statute providing enforcement powers. We therefore share the disappointment of those who fought for a genuine Fair Employment Practice Commission and saw it transformed by the House on Thursday into a disembodied spirit.

The bill adopted by the House establishes what might properly be called a Fair Employment Theory Commission. It will collect data demonstrating the extent and impact of job discrimination—data on a condition so obvious that no one attempts to deny its widespread existence. It will advise against such discrimination. It will undertake a program of education. It will attempt moral suasion. Such activities are admittedly important. They would have to be a vital part, indeed they would constitute the most important work, of an FEPC with enforcement powers. We doubt, however, that by themselves they can prove genuinely effective in areas where discrimination on account of race, religion and origin are considered justifiable. The character of legislation adopted by the Federal Government is a tremendously influential factor in the educative process.

Nevertheless, it is something to have the Congress on record as considering job discrimination contrary to sound public policy. It is an advance, if only a tentative one. The theory indorsed in this measure is an indispensable first step toward the indorsement of fair employment practices. We hope that in time the theory will be developed into a practice assuring equality of opportunity to every American as a birthright of his citizenship.

Roughshod On Rents

Virginia's General Assembly showed a reckless disregard of local interests in decreeing blanket decontrol of rents for the entire State. Over most of Virginia the lifting of ceilings in June probably will not make a great deal of difference, for the housing shortage is not acute. But in Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax, and especially in Quantico, some families in low-rent units are likely to suffer considerable hardship. The Legislature could easily have avoided this injustice by retaining a local option clause permitting local rent advisory boards to ascertain when supply had caught up with demand.

Governor Battle now has given some hope to the proponents of a new bill for local initiative. Certainly the Legislature owes it to constituents in northern Virginia to recognize their need for protection. The roughshod manner in which the protests of legislators from this section were overridden in the first place left the impression that there is no community of interest between the delegates from downstate areas who dominate the Legislature and the representatives awake to the needs of densely populated northern Virginia. Arlingtonians will smart a long time at the callous remark of Senator Frank S. Richeson of Richmond: "If our senior Senator (Byrd) could possibly succeed in cutting off the one or two million useless people on the Federal payroll, who are feeding at the public trough, Arlington would become a ghost town." The real explantation, we suspect, is that many renters do not vote, and they have been written off by those in control of Virginia's political machinery.

Repeal At Last

Repeal of Federal taxes on margarine is virtually assured by the elimination in conference of the Frear amendment to the Senate bill requiring all margarine to be sold in triangular molds. The compromise measure still contains a number of needlessly hampering, ostensibly protective provisions in regard to packaging and labeling, as well as vexatious devices, patently designed to discourage the serving of margarine in restaurants. These minor irritants can be disregarded, however, in view of the major victory won by the industry over the stubborn opposition of legislative representatives of the dairy interests. But the fight for a fair deal for margarine has not yet been won; hard battles lie ahead to persuade State Legislatures to repeal discriminatory taxes levied on the manufacture and sale of margarine and to remove prohibitions on sales of colored margarine. From the viewpoint of the industry and millions of consumers, these State laws are much more oppressive and unfair than the Federal levies that have held the spotlight so long and been the chief target of the repeal campaign.

Child Day Care Centers

I am writing this in sincere hope that the Commissioners and all opposed to the Child Day Care Centers will see and read it. I also hope that they will consider and realize the great need for the centers.

I am a widow and mother with a small child in one of these centers. There are no words to express the meaning of the center to me. My salary is a very small one. On the salary I make each week, there is rent to pay, food to buy, carfare for myself and child, a few clothes (once in a while) to buy and the small fee for the center.

If it weren't for this center, I would have to pay three times the fee for his care by someone who would not give him what he gets in the Child Day Care Center. When Congress appropriates the money for these centers, it surely is well spent, because it is for the welfare of these little children who need care and supervision while young.

I am at a complete loss to know why the Commissioners feel that these centers should not be under the Board of Public Welfare. If they were under the churches and a voluntary personnel, we mothers would not know what kind of treatment our children were getting. Where it stands now we know they are getting excellent care and supervision, because these are teachers that have nd know how to handle small children. You cannot give a small child someone new each day to care for him. Let him have the same teachers and the same routine every day.

All the mothers think the centers should remain where they are and the Commissioners should help get this bill through permanently, for we need these centers. FAY BEARD.

"The Miners' Defiance"

Your February 21 editorial, "The Miners' Defiance," is contrary in spirit to the concept of freedom, as we have always believed in it.

The people are not dreaming of freedom from fuel and food shortages; there have always been such shortages. They are dreaming of freedom from a government that intervenes in the struggles of the lowly for their betterment and frustrates their hopes for relief from economic slavery. PAUL C. JOHNSON.
Washington.

I flatly deny that the miners are in open revolt against the Government, unless, indeed, I am to accept the thesis that the Government is the "executive committee of private enterprise." The miners can only strike against their employers. They are not Government employes and therefore they are not striking against the Government. A hundred injunctions will not change this fact. The most ordinary common sense would seem to make it clear that the power of Government cannot in justice be made a one-sided affair. If the Government has power to force men to work for private enterprise, then it must also have power to fix wages, hours and all conditions of employment. There can be no such control of workers as you suggest without control of employers.

Indeed, "it is time to put illusions aside." For we have never really come to grips with the central problem in labor-management relations, particularly in areas where private enterprise operates the services essential to the life of the Nation. The problem is: To what extent should work and services essential to the life of the national economy be left to private enterprise and, therefore, private profit? Can we continue to allow private corporations to hide their own bad faith and unyielding attitude behind the protective skirts of the Government?

The principle is whether men who work under a recognized system of contracts for their own protection and that of employers as well, may be forced by any power whatsoever to work without such a contract, and in an interest which in the very nature of our system, is primarily private, and not public.
CHANCELLOR WILLIAMS.

Coal From Canada

With the coal strike bringing the people close to a severe coal shortage, it is suggested that we bring coal in from Canada while the miners and operators are working out a settlement.

This would not be in the nature of an effort to break the strike, but would avert the danger from a coal shortage, would give employment to the thousands of railroad workers laid off because of the coal strike, would give the distributors employment during the coal shortage, and would allow the miners and operators time to work out a satisfactory agreement, without pressure for an early settlement due to the emergency. Flaw In Brotherhood

This is National Brotherhood Week, a time when "it is the responsibility of all those who have had the blessings of an American education to help lead the way toward the practical realization of the ideals of brotherhood; for if they have not the faith and courage, we can hope to find the leadership nowhere else." Thus it was so well phrased in a joint statement signed by the presidents of the six major universities' student bodies in this area.

The irony of this statement, however, is that it appeared in the University Hatchet of George Washington University, an institution which during the five years I have been there has failed to practice this brotherhood. Not once has GWU participated in either basketball or football, or in debating, or other extracurricular activity, with Howard University; it forbade Negroes to enter its Lisner Auditorium when Joan of Lorraine appeared there; and its board of trustees recently failed to act affirmatively on raising the ban on Negro students in the GWU classrooms. This is happening in an institution bearing the name of a man who in his will endowed a university in the Nation's Capital that youth from throughout the country "might be enabled to free themselves from local prejudices."

Do the trustees and administration of George Washington University not realize that discrimination is the very antithesis of brotherhood, or is it that they lack "the faith and the courage." JOHN E. MacNAB.

Gambling In Prince Georges County

The recent public hearing on the Prince Georges "home rule" bill, where the attendance numbered in the hundreds, presented a sordid drama that ended prematurely—with only a suggestion of its logical climax.

Naturally, the county's mushrooming population was a recognized factor—admittedly presenting an "emergency;" yet, the vigor of the attack—upon the Sotheron bill and its sponsoring "machine" clearly reflected long-standing resentment and distrust which could not have originated in the rather recently arisen population problem.

The root causes of these long-term attitudes were barely glimpsed in brief references to the notorious pressure group control of our county—such as Walter Mulligan's allusion to the recent machinations of the slot machine lobby—but, had the hearing not been closed without providing speaking opportunities for the great majority of the gathering, they would probably have flared into the open. They stem from the unavoidable implications of the fact that, despite a State law which prohibits gambling down to and including cash prizes for games of chance, the name of Prince Georges is synonymous—in the Washington area and for hundreds of miles beyond—with illicit gambling. For many years the glaring symbol of our debauchment has been the incredible and invulnerable Jimmy's Place—so notorious that it was forced into its Prince Georges haven by even the pitifully inadequate District enforcement.

During the past few months we have been repeatedly regaled with news stories of under oath open court declarations that two of our top enforcement officers have been in the pay of big time gamblers—stories that have hardly created a ripple within our ruling clique. Hardly a responsible citizen of the Hyattsville area is unaware of the existence of at least two thriving bookie joints there, each masquerading under an allegedly respectable "front" activity. There are probably a hundred games of the "bingo" type operating openly in the county on a cash prize basis.

The fact that many of them have supposedly "respectable" sponsors does not lend respectability to such activities: It merely sharpens their impact upon private and public morality. These sponsors, particularly (because of the possibility of embarrassing publicity) the clerical ones, operate in constant and obvious fear of enforcement being initiated, not by our constituted authorities, but by either an outraged citizen or a competitor for the gaming trade. A few months ago a sponsor of a game actually invoked the State law, plus a nonexistent local law dreamed up by the authorities for the occasion, to revoke the permit (issued, supposedly, for non-cash prizes) of a rival sponsor—and retained his own immunity from the law in the process! The aggrieved sponsor was told by a high county authority that the permit would be restored with all its enforcement immunity, if a certain Democratic organization were made the beneficiary of its use!

Totally illegal raffings of automobiles, with fanfares of publicity, are common here. Though our last grand jury was probably well aware of the general situation, the "bingo" angle was presented to it in detail—again without causing a ripple. Some will say, "If your people know and resent these things, why don't they do something?" There are two strong reasons why they haven't. First: the county is on the edge of one party territory, and this influence, abetted by a heavy dose of democracy's curse—voters' apathy—denies us a normal opportunity for administrative turnover. Second: a large part of our influx has had no time to orient itself politically.

Now, however, it has come to pass that the more positive problems posed by that same influx may be the prod that will finally goad us to insist upon a thoroughly revamping that may offer some hope of relief from the moral and social paralysis of the status quo.

Tom-Tom Note In Cold War

By Malvina Lindsay

Mrs. Feddup Screams

AFTER A prolonged quiet, Mrs. Francine Feddup, chronic screamer aloud, was in court yesterday having been arrested for a shrill outburst in a hotel lobby.

"What was it you couldn't stand a minute longer?" asked Judge Parmalee Pudd.

"The stupidity of our cold war strategy!"

"Why Mrs. Feddup!" exclaimed the judge. "How can you say that when we have the hydrogen bomb?"

"That block buster! We're still fighting as clumsily as Neanderthal men!"

"Watch out!" warned the judge. What made you scream?"

"Well, I saw in the paper—"

"Didn't I tell you the last time you were in court never to read anything?"

"I was on my way to a fashion show. I was waiting for a friend, and some men had this newspaper and were talking about the Russians."

"Why did you listen?"

"Who could help it? They were calling them names. All Russians, they said, were blankety, blank liars, tricksters, scoundrels."

"Why should that make you scream? It's true."

"I CAN'T argue that, your honor. There are 211 million Russians and I haven't met them all. But granting it's true, it was pretty dumb to be sayirg it."

"Why not? Don't they call us names?"

"I don't know, your honor. I haven't been to the Soviet Union. But as I listened I remembered how experienced Western observers, recently come from Soviet areas, were warning that the West must learn to distinguish between the police state and the Soviet people. I thought how incredibly stupid it was for us here to be blatantly giving out propaganda to antagonize the entire Russian people—if we ever expected to deal with them."

"You ought to know we can't ever do business with Russians."

"Possibly not with the Kremlin. But after all, Woodrow Wilson did wake up—or at least break down—the German people with words and ideas."

"Don't be a sentimentalist, Mrs. Feddup. It's never going to be different in Russia. Those people will never throw off their yoke. Nothing we say will ever reach 'em."

"Your honor, I assume is clairvoyant."

"Don't get fresh Mrs. Feddup. What made you scream?"

"I thought of all the people I'd heard catcalling at the 211 million so-called Russians—people like cab drivers, hotel lobby sitters, Congressmen, Government officials, everybody on a soapbox or a platform who wanted publicity or a burst of applause—"

"Just a minute Mrs. Feddup. What organizations do you belong to?"

"None whatever. It's safer, also much cheaper. But I'm not championing the Russians. I'm just saying it's stupid to throw away what little chance we might have in propaganda warfare and do the one thing that'll put 'em solid behind their bosses."

"THEY LIKE what they've got well enough."

"I'm not so sure. What about the stream of refugees filtering across eastern Europe? . . . What about the peasant unrest in Soviet countries? Anyway, whatever happens we can't exterminate 211 million people. We'll have to do some kind of business with them—some time. It's plain dumb to be beating tom-toms like savages before combat."

"That American people are the smartest in the world, Mrs. Feddup."

"All the more reason not to act like schoolboys."

"What's this got to do with your screaming?"

"Well, when these men left I picked up their newspaper just to look at the comics. But my eye caught a story that told of still another general telling what rascals the Russians were—apparently all 211 million of 'em. Then I thought of how officials had been saying the same thing, publicly, talking about how we could lick 'em tomorrow morning, what inferiority complexes they had, and how they couldn't be trusted around the corner—"

"Get to the point!"

"Well, I wondered why all of us, officials, generals, and ordinary people didn't have sense enough to say what we meant, not only in public pronouncements, but in our ordinary conversation, to direct our charges and name calling to the Kremlin and the Communist Party moguls. I thought how heavy handed and crude we were lending a propaganda hand to Pravda this way and well—I just let everybody have it."

"Thirty days," said the judge. "And you're to do nothing in jail but learn to play canasta."

Life Of Washington

This Sesquicentennial play on George Washington is just another way to spend the taxpayers' money without instilling in the minds of children who George Washington was or what he stood for. I suggest Congress investigate why there is not a story book, a picture of George Washington, a flag or a pennant of any kind with Washington's picture for little children. I have been told by some stores that George Washington is a thing of the past. The best way to teach American history is to give little children story books and toys with pictures of men like George Washington, even sets of playing cards and George Washington puzzles.

FEPC Fiasco

By Marquis Childs

All-Or-Nothing Diehards

IN THE handling of the fair employment practices issue the Democratic leadership has provided an example of remarkable ineptitude. The net result was an embarrassment to Democratic members of the House in a bill that has little relation either to reasonable compromise or a strict enforcement measure.

Childs

From the beginning it has been perfectly obvious that an FEPC bill with compulsory and penalty provisions could not be passed. If nothing else, a filibuster in the Senate would block it, the Republicans having joined with Southern Democrats to make it far more difficult to close debate.

But it was also obvious that a large measure of support could be marshaled behind a fair employment law that would make a start at education and persuasion. Many Southern legislators were prepared to accept such a bill. They represent a shifting opinion in the South—outside, of course, of the deep and irreconcilable South—which recognizes the inevitability of change and the need to prepare for it.

A compromise measure such as that of Representative Brooks Hays of Arkansas calling for investigation of discrimination in employment, coupled with education of employers and public, would have meant a good start. It would have afforded a test in both North and South of intentions and capabilities, supplementing the experiment of State FEPC commissions which have now accumulated a fair amount of experience.

SUCH A compromise could have been accepted on a frankly limited basis. Even the most passionate proponents of FEPC could have accepted a test for a period of two or three years. They are not likely to get as much in that time if they persist in an all-or-nothing attitude.

Then, too, honest advocates of equality of opportunity in the North had come to doubt the wisdom of a Federal law providing punishment for violators. They realized that such a law could be used in the South to inflame latent feeling against minorities.

Both the Democratic leadership and the proponents of an all-out FEPC law seemed to abandon any hope of keeping a substitute measure in bounds. This was on the theory that whatever bill was sent to the Senate would be certain to be amended before final passage.

The substitute originally introduced by Representative Samuel K. McConnell jr., Republican of Pennsylvania, became in consequence something of a monstrosity. Amendments were slapped on in the confusion of the late-night session providing that women should not be discriminated against and that the disabled should be protected from unfair employment practices. These amendments were mostly the work of Southerners who knew exactly what they were doing.

THE HAYS bill, if it had been given a chance by the leadership, would have won the votes of a fair number of Southern Democrats. Moreover, President Truman had indicated that he would sign it if it came to his desk in anything like its original form.

It is hard to determine who is responsible for the present mess. But a great deal of the blame must rest on the diehard proponents of an all-or-nothing bill.

They can once again use the fair employment issue in the elections this fall. However, as one session of Congress after another fails to produce any legislation, the result may be disillusion and disgust rather than votes. The only real beneficiary is Representative Vito Marcantonio of the fellow-traveling Labor Party, whose aim is to discredit major parties.

The McConnell substitute put Administration Democrats on a bad spot. If they voted against it, then they were in the position of opposing the only bill that had a chance of passage. But since it was a Republican-sponsored measure, they could not take very much credit to themselves for going along with it.

One thing clearly demonstrated in the House is that FEPC has become a rather sordid football to be kicked back and forth between the two parties. The ineptitude of the Democrats made it possible for the Republicans to grab the ball and run for a touchdown.

I believe that if the Hays bill had been passed and sent to the Senate it would have had a good chance for passage there. The whole matter would have been taken out of the area of angry attack and counterattack. In a trial interval it could have been determined whether a law without sanctions would serve the cause of equal job opportunity.

Father and Son Among 273 To Pass D. C. Bar Examination

A doctor of jurisprudence and his son, an electrical engineer, were among the 273 applicants who waded successfully through the District bar exam last December, it was announced yesterday.

For Dr. Paul Max Craig, 64, of 7612 15th ave., Takoma Park, Md., the three-day grind was "mostly a problem of physical strength."

He has three degrees, the latest a master's degree in comparative law from George Washington University, and over 30 years of practice.

For his son, Paul Max Craig, jr., 28, fresh from Georgetown University Law School and an electrical engineering graduate of Worcester Tech, the exam was more of a problem in law.

But they're both "in" now, although neither sees any immediate use for their membership in the District bar. The elder Craig is a researcher and consultant, his son an examiner in the Patent Office.

The Craigs came here in 1941 just after France was taken over by Hitler, to avoid whom they had left their native Germany a few years earlier.

Craig had planned to come here just after World War I but a good job and family considerations dissuaded him. He now considers the delay the greatest mistake of his life.

Others of the 491 applicants who passed the December exam are:

Spanish Duchess Arrested Again

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

DUCHESS OF VALENCIA, a militant promonarchist, was arrested again in Madrid for "attacking the security of the state." She was nabbed at the door of the Associated Press Bureau by two plainclothesmen when she arrived to report that 30 of her followers had been arrested in two days on similar charges. It was her fourth arrest for monarchist activities

Fair Deal Hurt, Is GOP's View

Australia, indicates a trend against Socialism in the world which will no doubt be reflected in the United States."

No Effect Here, Says Lucas

But Senate Administration Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said flatly: "I don't think it will have any effect on the situation in this country."

Nor did the Democratic leader think there would be any resulting impact on ECA.

"Those who are opposed to our foreign policy would still be opposed to it, even if the Socialists won," Lucas told newsmen.

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) generally reflected the Southern attitude. Said Sparkman: "All signs are pointing to something similar to the British feeling here. Everybody wants to slow down, put the brakes on spending."

Tories "To Left of Fair Deal"

The extreme Fair Dealers, as represented by Humphrey, ridiculed the GOP's gratification at the results.

"The Tories in Britain are to the left of the Fair Deal," said Humphrey. "Winston Churchill would look like a dangerous radical in this country. So I don't see how the Republicans can get any joy out of a Conservative Party gain."

GOP National Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson led off the Republican size-up with this comment: "The tide is turning against the Socialist state."

Other GOP comment:

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee: "This can't mean anything but a reversal of the trend in spite of all the blandishments of American grants in aid. There are many evidences of the same trend in this country."

"Same Trend in Larger Way"

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.): The same trend "will be found here next fall, only in a larger way."

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.): "The people are getting tired of a Government straitjacket."

Senator John Bricker (R., Ohio): "It should mean the end of socialization in Britain for the time being."

Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.): "To me it means that freedom of choice is still the biggest thing in the world."

Truman Appoints Board, Heads Off Slated Rail Strike

President Truman yesterday set up an emergency fact-finding board, automatically heading off a Nation-wide railroad strike scheduled for Monday.

The action has the effect of delaying the proposed strike for 60 days under the railroad labor law.

The names of the emergency board members will be announced later.

The dispute is between the brotherhoods and carriers represented by the Eastern, the Western and the Southeastern Carriers' Conference Committees.

The unions' principal demand is for a 40-hour week for some 85,000 yard service employes, without a cut in pay from their present 48-hour scale.

partmental or other government positions, responsible for carrying on the business of the state.

With a majority in the twenties, ministers would have to conduct their official business on the floor of the Commons—an impossible absurdity—to make sure the government would not be overturned in a sudden vote of confidence.

It would be almost impossible to spare ministers for international conferences abroad, or for other urgent government business away from London—unless all official business were entrusted to members of the House of Lords.

In this day and age, such a solution would be a caricature of government, especially with a Labor government which has comparatively few members, and mostly doddering old-timers at that, in the hereditary upper chamber.

"Very Awkward Situation"

Some way, then, has to be found to govern. No Prime Minister has been in quite the same dilemma that will face Attlee and his Ministers at the cabinet meeting today.

Yesterday, as the astonishing results were pouring in, the voice of Harold Nicolson was heard here over the British Broadcasting Corp. Nicolson, a former career diplomat and member of Parliament, was a thousand percent British in his calm understatement of the case.

"It's a very awkward situation," he said. "We may be faced with a very difficult political and constitutional position."

Those who know the British best are confident they will act as they always do in "very difficult" crises, and will meet this one with British coolness and common sense.

be conditioned on the Marshall Plan countries binding themselves to take steps toward European unification.

Hoffman conceded that the United States might have a moral right to make a condition. But he warned that it would be "unwise," since better results come from persuasion.

Privately, he and other ECA officials fear any such provision would be almost impossible to administer, and would furthermore have disastrous psychological results in Europe.

Further Aid in Loans

The other suggestion was that of Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio) that further aid be mainly in the form of loans. Hoffman countered by replying that as it was, Britain and other Western European countries cannot possibly begin repaying dollar loans before the year 2000.

He explained it would take that long before those nations could earn in foreign trade the dollars necessary for repayment. It would be unreal, he indicated, to pretend that further aid, in the form of "loans," had any prospect of repayment.

Unconvinced, Vorys said after yesterday's hearing that he would fight for a substitute ECA measure. It would provide one billion dollars in repayable loans, one billion in surplus U. S. farm products, and one billion in cash grants conditioned on European unification.

The cordial and enormously friendly attitude toward Hoffman in the House committee was not reflected by Connally in his attitude toward ECA witnesses.

More than usually irascible, Connally told Kenney he didn't sympathize with his attitude and was sure that he would resolve the oil dispute, "as all others, in favor of the British."

He wanted to know how much Kenney earned from the Government and brought out that with salary and allowances it exceeded $20,000 a year.

"How much did you earn before you came to the Government?" he then asked.

"Between $70,000 and $80,000 a year," Kenney replied quietly. "I'm not making money by this Government job."

Connally dropped the subject.

Earlier, he welcomed J. D. Zellerbach, ECA mission chief to Italy, to the witness stand with the comment:

"You're supposed to be a big shot on the West Coast, but it looks like you're a flop in Italy."

a larger total than the Laborites.

At 1 a. m. today the standings were:

Labor and affiliates	314 seats
Conservatives and affil.	294
Liberals	8
Others	2
Speaker	1
Total	619

Total seats in the Commons, 625. Necessary to a majority, 313. Missing districts, 6.

Party gains and losses:

Gains: Conservatives, 50 seats.

Losses: Labor, 41 seats. Liberals, 1. Communists, 2. Others, 6.

Results in 6 of the 625 districts will come later. A recount in one district delayed announcement. Results from four districts in remote islands off Scotland are due Monday. The death of a Conservative candidate in a Manchester district caused a postponement of voting there until next Monday.

The popular vote was:

Labor and affiliates	13,157,708
Conservatives and affil.	12,344,091
Liberals	577,256
Communists	89,644.
Others	202,606.

A total of 28,346,459.

Even in victory, Labor had suffered a defeat. The British trend toward the left had stopped. Gone was the promise of "more socialism." Gone were the dreams of great new nationalization of industry schemes.

The electorate had been asked whether it wanted five years more of Socialist rule. The implicit answer in the returns was that it did not—that it wanted just a tiny bit more.

It was impossible for Labor to get the working majority—40 to 50 seats—sufficient to jam controversial legislation through the Commons. Labor leaders may have to swallow the bitter dose, to keep going even a few months, of accepting the proffered support of the handful of Liberals at the price of abandoning all nationalization plans.

2 Communists Defeated

Now Winston Churchill, Conservative leader and wartime symbol of victory, had another chance—a big chance—of a comeback.

In this swing to the right Britain's Moscow-minded leftists were buried under an avalanche of votes.

The lone two Communists in the Commons lost their seats. The five Labor "rebels" who were thrown out of the party for leftism were thrown out.

Every declared enemy of Anglo-American cooperation was out.

One Labor Cabinet minister was swept out of his seat—Arthur Creech Jones, Colonial Secretary.

Five others of semi-ministerial rank—men regarded as on the way up in the Government—also lost their seats.

A history-making election, bitterly fought, switched dramatically within a few hours.

When vote counting was stopped for the night, at dawn Friday, Labor had a lead of 60 seats over the combined opposition out of a total of 266 reporting.

Gloom Turns to Cheer

Labor leaders were jubilant. They said the Labor Government was in, that Labor might get its biggest vote in history. Conservatives were glum.

Early yesterday afternoon, when country and residential district returns started coming in, the situation changed suddenly. The Conservatives began creeping up.

At 1:45 p. m. (British time) Labor's lead went down to 44. At 3:15 it was down to 12. At 4:15 it was down to three—260 Laborites against 252 Conservatives and five Liberals. Then Labor began inching ahead—but not fast enough for the Laborites.

The joy at Labor headquarters turned to gloom and to dismay. Campaign Manager Herbert Morrison canceled a press conference. He, Prime Minister Atlee and other leaders held anxious talks.

At Conservative headquarters, Churchill beamed as he watched the returns and nodded and waved to cheers. He would not predict. But he said:

"It is obvious Parliament is going to be in an unstable position."

ings and O'Conor (Md.) and Tillgore (W. Va.)

Not voting: Byrd (Va.) and Neely (W. Va.)

The defeat of the Lucas effort to reduce the Nation's extravagant, annual potato program was the result of some shrewd parliamentary action by the potato-State leaders, headed by two New Englanders, Aiken (R., Utah) and Brewster (R., Me.).

Before moving into the Aiken vote, the potato supporters joined to ram through an amendment by Senator John J. Williams (R., Del.) that would have resulted in virtually wiping out all supports on potaties this year. The Williams rule would have exempted all potatoes this year. The Williams of the act, unless marketing quotas were in effect. It would be virtually impossible to put mandatory marketing quotas into effect in time to affect most of this year's harvest. Marketing quotas have to be passed by two-thirds of all the commercial growers, and then the rules and quotas promulgated by the Secretary of Agriculture. That would have taken months.

The Williams amendment made the Lucas act so widespread that it would have affected every State growing potatoes. That brought almost universal opposition from potato States.

After knocking out the Lucas proposal, the Senate moved on to an amendment by Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Neb.). That would require the Administration to shut off all potato imports whenever potatoes were in surplus.

Wherry and Senator Robertson (D., Va.) engaged in a bitter debate over this amendment. Robertson called it a "slap in the face at our best friend, Canada." Wherry resented Robertson's remarks. He declared that Canada would not resent the proposal. Robertson answered that its passage would bring about immediate "retaliation" by Canada, who, he said, "imports $3 worth of agricultural products from us for every $1 worth we get from her."

After an extended argument, further debate was put off until Monday. A vote on the cotton bill, to which the potato amendment was attached, will be taken at 4 p. m. that day.

Virginia Gets Alexandria Charter Bill

By a Post Reporter

Richmond, Feb. 24.—A new charter for the city of Alexandria, embracing changes recommended by the charter commission, was introduced in the House today by Delegate Armistead L. Boothe.

In the Senate, Charles R. Fenwick, of Arlington, proposed a bill to provide Arlington County with an associate judge for the County Court.

Senator Andrew W. Clarke, of Alexandria, proposed three bills to permit insurance companies to underwrite retirement funds in Fairfax County.

The House of Delegates passed four bills affecting the Virginia area near Washington: (1) by Delegates J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm, of Arlington, to permit the county to parallel state laws governing misdemeanors and to establish penalties for convictions, (2) by Delegate Edwin Lynch, of Fairfax, to increase the salaries of Fairfax School Board members from $300 to $600 a year, (3) Damm-Magruder bill relating to bond issues for construction of school buildings; and (4) several Boothe bills correcting errors of the code commission, but not changing the original statutes.

As the General Assembly adjourned for the weekend, Delegate Frank P. Beazley, of Caroline, announced a public hearing for 8 p. m. Monday, when House and Senate committees on Federal relations will consider resolutions introduced by Delegate Magruder and Senator Clarke.

Inquest Rules Cave-In Death An Accident

The death of a laborer in a construction ditch cave-in here last Tuesday was ruled accidental yesterday by a coroner's jury which heard more than an hour of testimony at the inquest.

The laborer, Ervin K. Brown, 40, of 5019 Fitch pl. ne., was working in a 5-foot ditch at the 14th st. entrance to the Hains Point tourist camp when the side of the excavation collapsed, crushing his skull and chest.

One of the timbers shoring up the ditch had been removed shortly before the cave-in, according to testimony of Andrew Burno of 344 Eastern ave. ne., foreman on the pipe-laying job, and three other men who were working with Brown at the time.

All testified they had to take the timber out so there would be enough room to swing an axe and cut away a log embedded in the bottom of the ditch. This procedure was a normal one and had been agreed on by the four workers and the foreman.

Burno said a freight train which went by near the job site at the time of the accident may have contributed to the cavein by shaking the ground.

Tax Reduction Plan Filed In Virginia

Richmond, Feb. 24 (AP).—A personal and corporate income tax reduction plan, pegged to the excess of general fund revenues above estimates—was introduced in the Virginia Senate today by Senator Harry F. Byrd, jr.

The Senate also passed unanimously bills to permit the State to take criminal action against income tax violators.

Byrd's bill would grant income tax relief on a sliding scale if revenues are substantially greater than estimated.

A number of other bills that would reduce taxes have been introduced, including a House bill that would grant automatic reductions if the general fund surplus exceeded five million dollars at the end of the fiscal year in June.

But the new Senate measure does not depend on what might be considered surplus in establishing its departure point. It names the 95-million-dollar figure at which general fund revenues have been estimated. Then if revenues exceed this amount by four million dollars the automatic reduction would be 10 percent. If the excess is as much as seven million the reduction would be 15 percent. If it reaches nine million or more a tax credit of 20 percent would be allowed.

"During the past 10 years actual revenues have substantially exceeded estimated revenues," Byrd said in a statement, "so if this trend should continue the taxpayers could expect an automatic and specific reduction in personal and corporate income taxes.

"If, however, there is no surplus above estimated revenues, then, of course, there would be no tax reduction."

The Senate gave quick approval to the bills by Senator E. O. McCue, jr., that puts a legal weapon in the hands of the State taxation department to use against income tax violators.

Up to now the department may proceed against violators only through the civil process of attachment. Under the McCue bills individuals and officers of corporations or members of partnerships who refuse to file or file fraudulently may be found guilty of a misdemeanor and fined a maximum of $5000.

Virginia Kills Boothe Bills

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Richmond, Feb. 24.—A 9-7 House committee vote behind closed doors today killed the Boothe bill to outlaw racial segregation on public transportation in Virginia.

A second bill sponsored by Delegate Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria—to establish a nine-member State race relations commission—was defeated when 10 members of the 17-man committee voted to pass it by indefinitely.

The House courts of justice committee voted on the bills behind closed doors after a reporter had asked the clerk to advise newspapermen outside of conclusion of the committee's executive session.

House rule 24 states: "Bills may be considered in executive session, but final vote thereon shall be in open session."

Committee Chairman J. J. Williams, of Henrico, told reporters a page "unlocked" the doors before a vote was taken. The first indication that waiting newsmen had of the vote was when committee members emerged after adjournment.

No record vote was taken, but after the meeting it was determined that Williams did not vote, since there was no tie to be broken.

Delegate Boothe said he will not renew his battle to have the bills reported during this session of the General Assembly.

Worley Picked For Customs Appeals Court

Representative Eugene Worley (D., Tex.), who once told President Truman he did not believe himself qualified for a certain type of judicial post, yesterday was named to another—that of Associate Judge of the U. S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals.

The Texan, a member of Congress since 1941, said he was "highly honored" by the appointment but indicated his House duties may preclude his resigning and taking the new post immediately.

Sources close to the White House said President Truman has kept Worley in mind for a judicial post ever since the Texan frankly told the President he did not feel qualified to accept a post on the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, a trial court.

President Truman is said to have been both amused and delighted at the reply, responding that Worley was the only member of Congress ever to express doubt of his qualifications to handle any sort of job.

An appeal court requires, primarily, training in research into the law, rather than trial experience.

Election Suit Held Invalid

The laws of Maryland take precedence over county laws where conflict exists, the attorney for the Montgomery County Board of Supervisors of Elections contended yesterday.

This argument was contained in a demurrer filed in County Circuit Court in answer to an injunction seeking to bar the board from holding a party primary in council elections.

Col. Norman B. Ames, Charter Committee president, filed the injunction February 3. This was one day after Gerald D. Morgan, Bethesda attorney, submitted to the board his candidacy for a council seat in the Democratic primary. The suit contended that the State Lindsay Law requiring partisan council elections is invalid.

How did American policies toward Britain influence the election campaign? Now that the elections are over, Post Staff Correspondent Frank Gervasi reports the important part played by the United States. He shows exactly how campaign speakers on both sides constantly brought up the United States in their appeals to the people. Prelude to Festival of Purim . . .

The Washington Post

PLAY REHEARSAL—A scene from the Book of Esther is enacted by pupils of the Hebrew Academy of Washington. They are (from left) Michael Dick, 6, of 2921 N. Second rd., Arlington, Va., as Haman; Jay Bernstein, 7, of 1355 Peabody st., nw., as King Achashveros; Stephen Reichlyn, 6, of 240 V st. nw., as Mordecai and Sandra Schwartz, 6, of 1504 Delmont ln., Takoma Park, Md., as Queen Esther. Purim, the most joyous of Jewish festivals, will begin at sundown Thursday and be concluded at sundown Friday.

For the Jews, Purim is a time of celebration. Children present plays and masquerades telling the story of Queen Esther. Charity is given to the poor, and gifts are exchanged.

In the synagogues and temples, the Scroll of Esther is read at services, to commemorate the deliverance of the Jews of ancient Persia from a massacre planned by their enemy Haman, prime minister of King Ahasuerus.

According to the story, Esther, Ahasuerus' queen, learned of the plot against her people and at a series of banquets revealed the plan to the King.

As a result of Esther's actions, Haman was hanged and Mordecai, one of the King's Jewish aides, became prime minister.

Clerics to Aid Red Cross in Fund Drive

Clergymen of all faiths will stress the work of the American Red Cross at services today and Sunday in churches and synagogues.

The Red Cross is seeking to raise $1,039,000 this year in its annual fund appeal in Greater Washington.

Formal indorsement of the appeal was announced yesterday by the Washington Board of Rabbis.

Rabbi Hymen Ezra Cohen, president of the board, said that the disaster relief and rehabilitation work of the organization "is part of man's Godly service to his fellow man which the spiritual leaders of the Jewish faith wholeheartedly indorse."

The board urged all Jews in Greater Washington to support the local campaign, both financially and through personal service.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington and president of the Washington Federation of Churches, praised the Red Cross for its "ministries to people in need," and called for generous support of the drive.

The Red Cross "enables generous-hearted citizens to help their fellowmen in times of suffering and crisis, not only in their home communities, but all over the world," the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, said in his indorsement of the fund appeal.

"A Red Cross gift is an investment in the health and safety of our families through nursing services, nutrition, first aid and educational programs," he said.

500 in Area to Make Pilgrimage to Rome

At least 500 persons from Greater Washington are expected to make pilgrimages to Rome during the Holy Year of 1950.

More than 250 of these will journey to the Eternal City on the official pilgrimage of the Archdiocese of Washington, sponsored by the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle.

The Very Rev. Msgr. John S. Spence, director of education for the archdiocese, will lead the tour, which will leave the United States by boat on April 22.

After visiting Rome, Paris, Lisieux, and Lourdes, the group will divide into three separate parties to visit various parts of Europe. One group will see the famed Passion Play at Oberammergau, another will tour through Italy and Switzerland, another Great Britain and Ireland.

The tours will vary in length from 28 to 66 days. Thomas Cook and Son, the tour operators, have announced that there are still a few spaces available for the short tour, but membership in the tours which will visit Oberammergau and the British Isles is closed.

While in Rome, the Washington pilgrimage will witness canonization ceremonies of Blessed Anthony Mary Claret on Sunday, May 7.

Pope Pius XII will take part in the ceremony, which will be held in St. Peter's Basilica.

In addition to the official tour, travel agencies have arranged visits to Rome and the shrines of Europe for persons traveling in smaller groups. Some will join pilgrimages from other dioceses.

Several Washingtonians are expected to join a pilgrimage planned by the International Catholic Travel Service of the Lanseair Agency which will include a visit to Jerusalem during Holy Week.

Travel agencies this week reported that partly because of Holy Year trips, all steamship space for the early summer is already taken. Some air lines, however, are still able to accept reservations for pilgrims.

World Council of Churches Asks Gigantic Peace Effort

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 24. (AP)—The World Council of Churches appealed today for a gigantic new effort for peace, to meet the threat of "world suicide" raised by the hydrogen bomb.

The council called upon the nations of the world to renew negotiations to break the present deadlock over international control of atomic energy.

The council represents 155 churches — Anglican, Protestant and Greek Orthodox—in 44 countries. The appeal was issued through its executive committee after three days of secret deliberations.

"Man's rebellion against his Creator has reached such a point that, unless stayed, it will bring self-destruction upon him," the statement said. "Let each ponder in his conscience, be he statesman or scientist or ordinary citizen, how far his own action or attitude contributes to the danger of world suicide, and what he must do to prevent it, and to bring the nations to understand and serve one another."

Caps Bow At Boston, 89-74; Third Loss in Row

Boston, Mass., Feb. 24.—The crippled Washington Caps fell apart in the third quarter and lost an 89-74 National Basketball Association Eastern Division game to Boston tonight.

The Caps piled up a 30-18 lead midway in the second quarter, and were on top, 37-36, at halftime. But they were the victims of a Celtic third-period rally, inspired by former Yale great Tony Lavelli, who slammed in 15 points in that period.

By the time the fourth quarter opened, the Caps were trailing, 67-52. Handicapped by the absence of injured Bones McKinney and John Norlander, the Caps tired badly and never threatened afterward. It was their third straight loss.

Chuck Gilmur and Don Otten, a couple of first year men with Washington, led the losers' attack with 18 and 16 points.

Caps Will Play Philly Here Tonight

The Washington Caps return home tonight at 8:30 to face the Philadelphia Warriors, the only National Basketball Association team they have been beating with any regularity.

A win tonight for the Caps would mark their fifth straight against Philadelphia.

Bullets Win; Referee Phil Fox Collapses

Philadelphia, Feb. 24 (AP).—The Baltimore Bullets beat the Philadelphia Warriors in a wild and wooly game tonight, 77-69, to even their season's series in the National Basketball Association at three victories each.

One of the officials, Phil Fox, of Brooklyn, collapsed in the first quarter. The other referee, Ed Boyle, finished the game with the help of Lou Sugarman on jump balls and boundary plays.

Paddy Young Wins Decision

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—Paddy Young, a snarling bulldog from New York's Greenwich Village, got revenge for a January 13 TKO loss by punching his way to a unanimous 10-round decision tonight over Tuzo Portuguez of Costa Rica at Madison Square Garden. Young weighed 155, Portuguez 156¼.

A crowd of 12,655 paid $43,828.

Portuguez lost his first fight in this country and no doubt about it. Judge Joe Agnello had it 9-1 for Paddy, Judge Jack O'Sullivan saw it 8-1 with one even, and Referee Ruby Goldstein voted Paddy a 7-2-1 edge.

Five Doctors Examined, OK'd Lavern For Fight

By Murray Rose

New York, Feb. (AP).—The death of handsome, young Lavern Roach, boxing's first fatality of 1950, was listed as "accidental" today by the city's chief medical examiner.

An autopsy was performed by Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales who said that the 24-year-old Texan died from a 'subnormal hemorrhage and ruptured pial emissary vein" in the brain.

[The New York Herald Tribune reported that no other injury to the brain, nor brain lacerations of any sort, was disclosed, nor anything to indicate an older brain injury, which spiked speculation that Roach's brain may have been damaged in his only other knockout, by the late Marcel Cerdan, two years ago.]

[The United Press reported that the autopsy disclosed "an old chronic heart condition, which could have been a rheumatic heart; but that had been cured and had no part in his death."]

The death was recorded as "accidental during a professional boxing bout."

Roach, a former Marine from Plainview, Tex., died at 12:50 p. m. yesterday following his knockout loss to Georgie Small of Brooklyn in the tenth and last round of a feature bout at the small St. Nicholas Arena in midtown. Ironically, only one minute and three seconds remained when Referee Frank Fullam halted the fray with Roach flat on his back.

As Gonzales gave out his report, two agencies probed into the affair.

The State Athletic Commission, with Chairman Eddie Eagan presiding, held an open hearing and listened to 10 witnesses. At the conclusion Eagan announced a report will be made "sometime next week."

City Begins Probe

From there the witnesses journeyed to the district's attorney's office where the city agency was conducting its own investigation.

Twenty witnesses were called at the district attorney's hearing, which was closed. They included Small, the referee, and many others who had testified before the athletic commission.

The district attorney's investigation will be continued Monday. "Several more persons will be questioned," said George P. Monaghan, one of four assistant district attorneys aiding the probe.

As part of the record, the investigating bodies had a statement from Detective Lieut. Henry Devlin of the New York City Police. Devlin said he had seen the match and "there does not appear to be any negligence at this time."

At Eagan's hearing, most of the testimony concerned a sore nose Roach complained of last Sunday. It was brought out that five doctors examined and passed him for the Wednesday night bout.

Dr. Alexander Schiff, a staff physician of the commission, said that "nothing happened to Roach's nose during the fight that might have caused his death."

Johnny Abood, Roach's manager and longtime friend, backed Schiff's statement. Abood said that he took Roach to a gym Monday to see if his nose was alright, and that he told a sparring partner, Coco Kid, to jab away at Roach's nose to see if it brought pain. It didn't, said Abood.

Schiff said that in examining Roach "I really mashed his nose. There was no sign of pain or tenderness that I could elicit."

Referee Fullam described the fight in which Small, far behind, landed a stiff right which shook up Roach in the eighth. In the tenth Small dropped Roach for seven with a right and seconds later floored him again with another right.

"As soon as he fell, I called it over," Fullman said.

The referee said he examined Roach closely before the ninth and tenth rounds and found "nothing unusual about his appearance."

"I talked to him right after the fight. I said "How do you feel?" and he said, 'I'm all right; I'm all right'."

Small, the grief-stricken victor, said he felt he was behind in the fight.

"Forced Fight"

"When the tenth round started," said Small, "he was coming right back at me. I hit him with a good left hook that shook him up, but he kept coming back, even after the knockdown and the count of 7."

Asked if Roach seemed groggy then, Small replied: "No. Up to the knockout he was still forcing the fight."

Funeral services for Roach will be held at 3:30 p. m. (EST) tomorrow at Knapp's Colonial funeral home, East Orange, N. J. The body will be sent to Plainview, Tex., for burial.

'Contact' Man to Offer Aid

Harvard Changes Its Mind, Opens Arms to Athletes

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 24 (AP). Harvard cast a policy of aloofness aside and stretched out arms of welcome today to prospective athlete-students.

The Nation's oldest university—still smarting from its most disastrous football season last fall—announced that athletes will be considered "special, not isolated cases."

A new policy outlined by Provost Paul H. Buck calls for financial and scholarship aid to students and provides for "contacting" students—including athletes—who are considering entering Harvard.

More than two months ago, as Provost Buck was preparing to study the Crimson's muddled football affairs, Athletic Director Bill Bingham had Harvard abandoning "big time" football and gradually settling into its own class of Ivy league competition.

Since then Bingham has given a stock "no comment" answer to all questions concerning Harvard athletics.

Once a power in intercollegiate athletics, Harvard teams have been performing poorly for the past few years. The all-time football low was reached last season when the Crimson won but one game in nine starts, and were defeated decisively on occasions.

Football Coach Art Valpey resigned with a season to go on his three-year contract to accept a similar post at the University of Connecticut and recently Harvard canceled its 1950 game against strong Stanford.

The new program calls for:

1. Assistant Provost John U. Monro to survey student needs for financial aid.

2. Improvement and formalizing of the "already informal integration of the scholarship committee, the employment office and the student's loan policy" so that resources may "meet the problem more effectively."

3. The setting up of more direct machinery "to inform prospective undergraduates what solutions (through scholarships, employment and loans) Harvard offers for meeting financial problems."

The prospective students would be contacted by a university representative who would give "informed advice as to what opportunities exist" for meeting expenses at Harvard, Buck said.

Monro said that in the future a student unable to work full time during the athletic season possibly could obtain loans on the same basis as financial aid to other students.

He added:

"We have always had the machinery here for aid to students. We are simply trying to give them all a clearer picture of the employment conditions. I think that we have always given plenty of assistance to our students. Maybe we can improve a little on it with this program."

Middlecoff's 66 Takes Lead From Furgol in Houston Golf

Houston, Feb. 24 (AP).—Cary Middlecoff took six strokes off par in his last 10 holes to day to take the halfway lead in the $10,000 Houston Open with a 67, 66—137.

"It was one of my best days in golf," the National Open champion said as he saw his 34, 32—66 send him two strokes in front of Ed Furgol, Royal Oak, Mich., the first round leader.

Furgol was in trouble all day on the 6725-yard, par-72 Braeburn Country Club course. He placed a 1-over 73 beside yesterday's 66 for a 36-hole 139.

Furgol lost a stroke on a rules interpretation on the third hole, but he took his day's work philosophically.

"If you can stay within two strokes of that Middlecoff you'll be in that cash," he said.

Sinks 3 Long Putts

Middlecoff, playing out of Ormond Beach, Fla., used two 30-foot putts and another for 35 while turning in his fancy 10-hole finish.

Tied for third place with 140's, four under par for the 36 holes were Leland Gibson, Kansas City, Mo., Rod Munday, York, Pa., and Pete Cooper, Pontevedra Beach, Fla.

Notre Dame No Match for Pros, Coach Paul Brown Contends

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 24 (AP).—How would Notre Dame, 1949 collegiate football champions, stack up against the best among the pro elevens?

"It wouldn't be a contest," says Paul Brown, coach of the Cleveland Browns, 1949 All-America Conference champs.

"It wouldn't even be close," Brown added, "any professional club the past season could beat the best college team.

"I know what I'm talking about. My Ohio State team of 1942 was the national champion. That was a good season all over; there were lots of good college teams. But I tell you that maybe one man on that team could make our Cleveland pro squad. That's the difference."

New Redskin Talks Golf

Bill Dudley Plays Along With Marshall Plan, Delays Signing

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bill Dudley hasn't signed with the Redskins.

In fact, the former University of Virginia star didn't even have a pencil yesterday. I had to borrow one from Coach Herman Ball when I interviewed Bill at the local stronghold of the Marshall Plan, George P. Marshall that is, and there's a slight difference.

DUDLEY

Dudley, a ball of fire on anybody's gridiron, proved a dud as far as news angles were concerned.

He was crammed full of such expressions as "Haven't decided if I'll play next season" and "I'm on the fence right now" and "I haven't talked contract with Mr. Marshall or Mr. Ball" and "If I play with anybody it will be the Redskins."

Bill did say his golf had improved "six or seven strokes" since he shot an 88 in the Celebrities' Tournament here in 1947 but laughed off any suggestion that he might be grooming himself for golf as a career.

He confided he would rather have been a baseball player than a gridman. Played second base and the outfield when he first came to Virginia but was forced to specialize in football in his final two years.

Dudley who's 28 years old, has moved his family—Libba, his pretty wife, and Elizabeth Jerrett, 14 months and William Leinge, 2 months—to Lynchburg, where he is taking foreign languages at Lynchburg College to finish up for his degree.

I did learn during the visit that the Lions, who traded Dudley for Dan Sandifer, would like to take the Virginia Comet back if he failed to sign with the Redskins.

Coach Ball, evidently, wants Dudley to get in line—or rather get in his backfield.

"We need experience among our ball carriers and Bill could supply that," said Ball. "He has been around long enough to add the seasoning we'll want in there with our youngsters."

Dudley came up with a wisecrack when asked about his various Touchdown Club dinner awards. He confessed to receiving honors as outstanding college player, outstanding service player and outstanding pro player.

As I scribbled he smiled and said, "Not all the same year and please get them down in the right order."

From the corner came "Haight's been outstanding all his life."

I'm not sure whether Wilbur Moore or Dick McCann said it, but I patted my tummy and joined in the laughter.

But, as I started out to write, Bill Dudley hasn't signed. However, under the George P. Marshall Plan signing is never less than a three-day affair, if you know what I mean.

GW High Tops Mt. Vernon; 6th in Row

George Washington High of Alexandria finished its northern Virginia Group No. 1 season with a 50-34 triumph over Mount Vernon last night at the Fort Belvoir gym. It was the seventh league victory without a loss for the Presidents.

It was the sixth straight win for George Washington and its thirteenth against six defeats.

G. W., Wake Forest Play Here Today in Tournament Tuneup

In its final tuneup for next week's Southern Conference championship tournament, George Washington University takes on Wake Forest this afternoon, 4 o'clock, at Uline Arena.

It's the only college game on the home front today, Maryland playing at Clemson and Howard at North Carolina State College for Negroes at Durham.

For GW's Johnny Moffatt, Len Small, Sam Schreiber, Phil McNiff and Howie Hoffman, today's appearance will be their last in college competition, their three years of eligibility having expired.

The Colonials are shooting for their twelfth conference victory in 15 starts, and if they win as expected, they'll carry the third best record into the league tournament which begins Thursday at Durham. Only North Carolina State, defending champion, and William and Mary have done better.

Wake Forest is seventh ranking of the eight teams which have qualified for the tournament. The Deacons boast a 10-7 league record.

South Carolina Whips Terps, Lands Top Bracket Berth

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 24 (AP).—South Carolina won a top-bracket Southern Conference basketball tournament berth by defeating Maryland, 59-44, here tonight.

The victory in its final scheduled game of the season may have been a costly one for South Carolina—it put Guard Don Cox, ballhawking specialist, in the hospital with a painful ankle injury.

Doctors at the university infirmary where Cox was taken said it was unlikely he would be able to see action in the tournament.

In past games, when Cox was unable to play, South Carolina has been helpless.

Roach's Widow Says

Boxer's Earnings Not Worth Risk

Maplewood, N. J., Feb. 24. (AP) Evelyn Joyce Roach, 22-year-old widow of boxer Lavern Roach, said today that boxing just isn't worth the chances.

"Now that it is all over, I'm free to say that no matter how much money a man makes in that business, it isn't worth the chance he takes," she said.

Roach, who died yesterday of injuries suffered in a bout Wednesday night with Georgie Small at St. Nicholas Arena, New York, didn't see it that way, his wife recalled.

If asked whether the game were dangerous, he would answer, "sure, but you can get killed driving a car too," she said.

Mrs. Roach said she felt she had no right to ask her husband to give up the ring. "After all he was a boxer when I married him," she remarked.

His parents, who are expected here from Texas today, also did not try to talk him out of it, she said.

Mrs. Roach saw her husband's last fight on television, although he didn't know it.

When she told him at 6 p. m. on fight night that she didn't plan to see the bout, he told her, "I'm glad you're not. It's going to be a tough fight.

"Everything will be all right, but I'm glad you're not going to watch it on television."

Later, she said, she changed her mind and watched the fight on television at the home of friends.

Laverne had never told her, she said, "but I sensed that if he knew I was watching, it wouldn't be good for him."

Bill Bennings . . .

Dear Folks: I've got to string along with Coaltown in The Widener with Royal Governor second and Balan third. The latter two may give the Calumet ace a fit, at that, Royal Governor ran a remarkable race first out over the course and should improve. Balan's Pimlico showing still sticks in my mind. If I were at the track, I'd have to have a "saver" on Balan. Looks as if Charles Town will have to start its meeting without the usual race train. Due to the coal situation, the B. & O. has called off the special. However, the Atwood transportation lines has stepped into the breach and will send buses to the track daily from Washington, starting with the opening program on March 4. Atwood supplied a similar service during the coal strike of 1946.—Bill.

Franny Dyer Assigned to Check Sgro

The Eastern Ramblers tangle with McKinley Tech's Trainers for the Interhigh basketball championship at Uline Arena this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Spectators for the game will be allowed to remain for the George Washington University-Wake Forest game at 4 p. m. without additional charge.

Little Franny Dyer, Eastern's playmaker and floor general, has drawn the unenviable job of trying to stop Tech's Tony Sgro who hasn't been held to fewer than 10 points by an Interhigh team this year.

Sgro, as well as being the Trainers' leading scorer, is also their ball hawk and a good floorman.

The Ramblers also have a lot of respect for Tom Megill, the Trainers' big center. It was Megill who scored 21 points against them in the first meeting between the two in the first week of Interhigh league play, when Tech won 61-54.

In that game Megill barely nosed out Eastern's Jimmy O'Donnell for scoring honors as O'Donnell, the league's pacemaker, garnered 20 points.

It promises to be a high scoring duel as both squads have averaged over 50 points against Interhigh competition this year, with Tech hitting 77 against Chamberlain for the season's high.

St. Anthony's Beats St. Paul's

St. Anthony's won a 56-53 overtime decision over St. Paul's yesterday at the Merrick Boys' Club. The regular game ended in a 52-52 deadlock.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 24 (AP).—Notre Dame basketballers make their first Annapolis appearance in meeting Navy (2:30 p. m.) tomorrow before a sell-out crowd of 3080 in Macdonough Hall.

Bill Wilson, highest Middie point-getter with 233 in 20 games, is shooting for an individual single season scoring mark at the Naval Academy. The record is 255 scored by Kenny Shugart in the 17-game 1946-47 campaign.

Guard Kevin O'Shea is Notre Dame's leading scorer with 306 points in 20 games. He is followed by Leroy Leslie, who has 245 tallies.

Notre Dame and Navy lost to their only common foe, St. Louis University. Notre Dame was beaten 55-45 and Navy, 54-46.

Hoyas at IC4A Games

Terps Out After Champion Tar Heels in Track Tonight

University of Maryland is the leading challenger as North Carolina defends it's Southern Conference indoor track championship tonight at Chapel Hill, N. C.

Georgetown is the only other area college track team in action. The Hoyas, led by their prize 2-mile relay team, have entered 13 men in the IC4A games at Madison Square Garden, New York City tonight.

Success of the Terps' 29-man traveling squad depends on how well North Carolina's Bill Albans has recovered from a twisted ankle.

Bill will try to defend his high and low hurdles and high and broad jump championships in his first appearance of the season. Earlier this season he had to be scratched from the Evening Star and Maryland Invitational meets, because of his ankle.

If Bill regains his form, Maryland's chances will be decidedly dim. If he can't go at full speed, Maryland is almost certain to grab the title. The Terps beat out the Tar Heels in the Maryland invitational last week by eight points.

Half-Miler Jim Umbarger and Miller Bob Palmer of Maryland will be defending their meet titles. And Mario Salvanelli and George McGowan are back from last year's titular mile relay team from College Park. Al Buehler and Bob Browning will round out the foursome.

Georgetown will be trying to crack its 15-year-old IC4A two-mile relay record with a team composed of Pat O'Brien, Dave Boland, Dave Smith and Joe Deady. They've been clocked better than 7:44 three times this winter, once in 7:41.1. The old Georgetown mark, set in 1925 when the Hoyas won the IC4A team title, is 7:41.6.

2 U. S. Swim Titles on Line Here Tonight

Two national junior championships will be decided at today's A.A.U. swimming meet at 7 p. m. at the Eastern Branch Boys' Club pool.

A field of 125 from Washington, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, North Carolina and New Jersey is entered.

Twelve D.C.A.A.U. junior titles will also be decided. Two open events wind up the program.

National A.A.U. championships at stake are the men's 150-yard backstroke and the women's 50-yard backstroke.

Top contestants in the men's National event are Henry Whitter of Plainfield, N. J., Bob Wilson of Baltimore and Elmer Smith and Paul Arata of Maple Grove, Pa.

Women seeking national honors are Judy Lens of Newark, Bettina Schwenk and Barbara Merrymen of Baltimore and Ellen Oberti and Mary Freeman of Washington.

Marlene Bauer, Babe Zaharias Teams Ousted

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 24 (AP).—Louise Suggs and Toney Penna eliminated Mrs. Babe Zaharias and George Bolesta, 2 and 1, in the international mixed two-ball golf tournament today.

But the spotlight was centered on the darkhorse team of Marge Burns and Charles Farlow.

The Greensboro, N. C., team, playing beautifully under pressure, beat Marlene Bauer of Midland, Tex., and home pro Denny Champagne, 1 up, to gain the semifinal round opposite Patty Berg of Chicago and Earl Stewart of Dallas.

Another surprise entry, Mrs. Eddie Bush of Hammond, Ind., and Clarence Doser of Scarsdale, N. Y., gained the round of four opposite Miss Suggs of Lithia Springs, Ga., and Penna, Cincinnati pro, by beating Betty McKinnon of Mount Pleasant, Tex., and Walter Burkemo of West Palm Beach, 3 and 2.

Cass Michaels Agrees to Terms

Chicago, Feb. 24 (AP).—Star Second Baseman Cass Michaels, last of the Chicago White Sox holdouts, today accepted his 1950 contract terms via telephone. Michaels' asking price in the extended salary debate was believed to be around $18,000.

Draw Favors Calumet at Anita; Coaltown 2-5 Favorite in Widener

Citation, Ponder Get Ideal Spots

By The Associated Press

Two rich races climax the winter racing season today—the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap in Arcadia, Calif., and the $50,000 Widener Handicap in Hialeah, Fla.

At both races, Calumet flyers are big favorites.

Coaltown, sagging under the heaviest impost in the 12-year history of the Widener, 132 pounds, is 2-5 to win in Florida.

Two Lea, Ponder and Citation, Calumet threesome, which drew choice post positions yesterday, were all 2-5 at Santa Anita.

Two Lea on Rail

Two Lea drew the No. 1 spot and is expected to set the pace for stablemates Ponder, in the fourth position under Steve Brooks, and Citation, in the fifth lane under the famed Eddie Arcaro. Citation is top-weighted in his race, too, at 132 pounds.

Citation, in the field of 11, is aiming at passing Stymie's $918,485 in the all-time money-winning derby. Citation has earned $879,200, and victory today will achieve that goal.

Citation, triple crown winner of 1948, is in the midst of a comeback campaign, having won once and finished second twice after a 15-month layoff. Ponder and Miche, which inflicted the two recent defeats on Citation, are contenders today.

Armed, Three Rings Out

At Hialeah, Calumet Trainer Ben Jones has threatened to scratch Coaltown if bad weather adds to his woes of top weight. Steady rain yesterday made footing heavy. Clouds and a little rain are expected today.

Armed, Calumet's Widener winner in 1946 and '47, was not entered nor was Three Rings, winner of two major stake races this season. The latter, conqueror of Coaltown in the $25,000 McLennan, injured his knee Wednesday in his stall.

Mrs. E. Dupont Weir's Royal Governor, runnerup to Three Rings in the McLennan and under 118 pounds, is second choice at 4 to 1. Addison Stable's Arise to be ridden by veteran Jockey Ted Atkinson is third choice on the overnight line at 8 to 1. Arise will carry only 109 pounds.

Friends J. V. Wins

Ben Petee scored eight points to lead the Sidwell Friends Jay-Vees, 25-22, over Swanson Junior High of Arlington yesterday on the losers' court.

Civil Service Board Urges Non-Racial Job Training

By Jerry Klutz

A new program to train all qualified employes, Negroes and whites alike, for plate printer jobs in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was recommended yesterday by Civil Service's Fair Employment Board.

Kluttz

The decision grew out of an appeal to the board by nine Negro employes who accused the bureau with racial discrimination because of the indefinite postponement of an apprentice plate printer exam.

The board conceded that the postponement of the test in 1948 "was, at the time, an exercise of reasonable business judgment." But it goes on to say that "any continuation of past recruitment methods and procedures as applied to plate printers will inevitably involve an element of racial discrimination against Negroes in that it will perpetuate a system which has operated effectively to bar Negro citizens from the civil service posintion of plate printer in the bureau."

While the board was pondering its decision, the bureau announced it would give the postponed exam on March 15. The board applauded this as an "encouraging step in the right direction" but concluded it didn't go far enough and recommended the plate-printer training system.

Half of the applicants for the test are Negro. Apprentices will be trained four years before they can be promoted to regular plate printers. The bureau employs an average of 500 plate printers. None has ever been a Negro.

ARMY: A study of its employe loyalty policies and procedures is being made to make them more effective.

Secretary Gordon Gray yesterday told the Karst subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee that he would report back in a week on any changes in the loyalty and security program. The subcommittee is investigating alleged Communist infiltration and other charges at the Army's St. Louis Finance Center.

Gray also promised to bring a fired employe here for a full hearing. The person involved is a former woman employe who is reported to have been fired after she told of a Communist ring and other irregularities in the Army office.

Representative Rees (R., Kans.) demanded a full and complete public hearing by the subcommittee of the charges.

COVER ORDER: The Civil Service Commission yesterday eased its regulations to help a few employes win permanent civil service status.

Under the covering-in order issued last fall by the President, an employe had to have been appointed prior to March 16, 1942, and have been on active duty last September 30. Under the new provision, employes who were laid off and returned to duty within 60 days during the above dates will be eligible for status.

VETERANS' CREDIT: The bill to give World War II veterans in the postal service credit toward promotions for time served in the armed forces will be called up next week in the House.

The bill would expire on June 30. It would have the effect of granting pay boosts from $100 to $400 a year to those World War II veterans who entered the postal service for the first time after their military service.

Several members plan to try to amend the bill to broaden it to cover all World War II veterans throughout Government. The Administration is cool toward the bill.

Also slated for House action next week is a bill to set up a National Science Foundation.

NOTES: Civil service has ordered the Veterans Administration to demote its 1500 Grade 9 registration officers to Grade 7. VA is planning to appeal . . . Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) will speak at the annual meeting of the Group Health Association to be held Monday night in the Interior auditorium. Three GHA trustees will be elected from the following candidates: Eugene Eaton, Interior; Harold Eisele, Agriculture; David Ginsburg, SEC; K. A. Meiklejohn, Labor; Maurine Mulliner, Federal Security; Aaron B. Nadel, VA; John L. Sullivan, Defense; Albert Waterson, World Bank, and Dr. John Newdrop, Miners' Welfare Fund.

Who Invented Federalese?

Long Memories and Old Files Prove Helpful to Jerry Kluttz

What some guys will do to get their names in the papers! This is a classic example:

The Washington Post and its columnist, Jerry Kluttz, were accused Thursday of stealing a long list of "Federalese" or "gobbledygook" expressions. Their accuser, Willard C. Faught, asserted he had invented the words in a book he published in 1945.

But long memories and old files come in handy at times as they prove that many of the definitions Faught declares to be his very own were carried in the Kluttz column in 1943.

Now who's the gobbledygook grabber?

Kluttz, on behalf of The Washington Post, pointed out that at no time did he claim credit for the expressions. His files reveal that on May 25, 1943, he asked his readers to send him examples of Federalese and their amusing definitions of them. Several score appeared shortly thereafter and others have been published infrequently over the years.

A contributor recently sent in a whole list of the definitions. Klutzz printed them in his December 18 column, explaining that some were old and some were new but all were interesting.

Now up jumps the publicity-minded Faught to claim that 35 of the 46 definitions were original with him in his book, "The Care and the Feeding of Executives." He even accused Kluttz of being a "plagiarist" and thief," and implied he was a kleptomaniac.

Is that so? Well, those worn but can't-be-destroyed files show, after a brief search, that Faught got many of his terms from the Kluttz 1943 columns. The following are among the definitions which Faught claims as his brainwork but which were carried in the Kluttz column long before his book appeared:

Faught, in his 1945 book, defined "Under Consideration" as meaning, "Never heard of it." Kluttz used the identical definitoin in May 25, 1943, in The Washington Post.

Faught's gobbledygook for "Under Active Consideration" appeared in The Washington Post on May 25, 1943.

His definition for "See Me" was printed in The Post on May 28, 1943.

His version of "Research Work" (hunting for the files) was printed in The Post on June 10, 1943.

The book glossary term for "Referred to Higher Authority," was, oddly enough, printed in The Washington Post on May 25, 1943.

Other "Federalese" terms used by Faught included "for appropriate action" (printed in The Post in June 1943, "referred for appropriate action" (printed in The Post on June 1, 1943).

Faught, with a somewhat abnormal pride of authorship, tried to take all the blame for the violence Government workers have done the language.

PS: Oh yes, we almost forgot, Faught and his coauthor, are coming out soon with a new book. Could they believe a little free name-calling publicity would help sell a few copies of it?

Leaders Deny 2 Unions Fill Jobs in Strike

Officials of two AFL unions here yesterday denied their members were replacing men in the third AFL union now on strike in six Washington theaters and four office buildings.

Robert P. Bailey, president of Local 82, Building Service Employes Union, said, "I emphatically deny that any of our members are working at any of the struck theaters."

George W. Lovell, president of the Firemen and Oiler's International Brotherhood Local 63, said the same was true of his union.

A. Julian Brylawski, president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of Metropolitan Washington, repudiated a statement made Wednesday that members of the unions were filling the struck positions.. He said yesterday that he did not know whether the men were in unions, but that they were "all local, licensed engineers."

Meanwhile the four-day old strike of Local 99, International Union of Operating Engineers, AFL, continued with picketing and no resumption of negotiations.

Jesse West, business agent of the local, said the union was "willing to negotiate day or night."

The theaters involved are the Warner, the Metropolitan and the Tivoli of the Warner chain; the Capitol and the Palace of the Loew's chain, and the Trans-Lux.

County Set For Trial of 13 on Charge Of Gambling

D. C. to Delay Action Until Prince Georges Verdict; Extradition Plea to Be Monday

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

Thirteen indicted gamblers, arrested with William "Snags" Lewis in Bladensburg 11 months ago, will be tried in Prince Georges County before they are retried in the District.

Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz said yesterday extradition of all the men, except Lewis, will be asked Monday, when their cases are called in District Court.

All were tried here in November on charges of conspiracy and operating a numbers lottery. The case ended in a hung jury.

Lewis will not be extradited, Hitz said, because he is under the jurisdiction of the United States Court of Appeals. He was convicted in District Court of operating a numbers lottery with two associates last January and sentenced to serve from 10 to 30 months. Lewis appealed. The FBI is still investigating charges that efforts were made to tamper with the jury that convicted Lewis.

The 13 are:

John R. Mitchell, 3110 10th st. nw.; Fulton J. Mitchell, 517 10th st. ne.; George P. Scott, 1031 E st. se.; Fred Sutton, 1210 6th st. nw.; Lonnie Black, 637 L st. se.; Anis Wyche, 122 F st. nw.; Ralph Spottswood, 318 N. Henry st., Alexandria, Va.; Edward L. Hinkle, jr., 811 Presidential Gardens, Alexandria; Gregory Segar, 2801 22d st. se.; Sterling Welch, 4611 Verplank pl. nw.; Dean Kennedy, 2100 Queens Chapel rd., Avondale, Md.; Bernard J. Del-Negro, 2428 Tunlaw rd. nw., and Ellis L. Solet, 2805 Lee blvd., Arlington.

Two other gambling trials, also involving men indicted by the special gambling grand jury and scheduled to be heard Monday, will be postponed one month, Hitz said.

Convicted gambler Attilio Acalotti is involved in both trials. In one he faces gambling charges with Umberto D'Ambrosio, 1227 New York ave. nw.

In the other he faces gambling charges with Ralph Caparotti, alias Rags Costello, 1124 Oates st. ne., and Frederick Whiteoak, 1504 Oates st. ne.

Hitz said that postponement of the two trials was not connected with the disappearance of the key Government witness in both cases, Bernice Franklin, Acalotti's former girl friend. Government investigators and police have been unable to find Miss Franklin since February 1.

Hitz said yesterday he has been in contact with Miss Franklin "indirectly," that she is out of the city, but is expected to be in court to testify when the cases are next called, March 27, exactly one year after the men were arrested.

Maj. Barrett Admits Shifts Were Canceled

Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett yesterday confirmed he had transfered three police captains Thursday night and rescinded the shifts five hours later.

The Washington Post revealed yesterday morning that Barrett had secretly ordered the transfers of Captain Anthony Richitt from command of the Third to the Eighth Precinct, Captain Charles Sullivan from the Second to the Third, and Captain John Fondahl from the Eighth to the Second Precinct.

The orders were canceled five hours later at 11:30 p. m. No explanation was given of the transfers or the cancellations.

Barrett refused to see reporters throughout the day, but issued a one-sentence confirmation through his secretary.

Sergeant Louis Peters told reporters: "I have been authorized by Major Barrett to say only that he did make the transfer and that he did later cancel them."

"The major has no other comment on The Washington Post story," Peters repeated.

Barrett was reported to have left his house for police headquarters at 7:30 yesterday morning, but Peters said he had not seen Barrett all day.

Reports were current at police headquarters that Richitt had sought White House intervention to block the shifts.

However, Charles G. Ross, White Houe press secretary, said there was "not a word of truth" in it. He said he and other White House officials knew nothing about the matter until they read about it in the papers.

Major Barrett and Captain Richitt flew to Key West, Fla., last fall when President Truman went there for a vacation.

White House officials and newspapermen explained that the police officers were invited guests of newspapermen who cover the White House. According to them, the two paid their own fares on the chartered press plane, and expenses in Key West. These sources insisted the pair spent a good deal of the time fishing and did not visit the Little White House on the naval base.

PHA to Close Arlington Farms Soon

The Public Housing Administration announced yesterday that Arlington Farms and Midway Hall, wartime dormitories for Government girls, will close July 31.

According to John T. Egan, PHA commissioner, both projects have served their wartime purpose and are now operating at a loss. With many rooms unoccupied, he said, a deficit is inevitable and there is "no alternative than an orderly closing of the halls."

Originally built to house 8383 girls, the two projects were occupied by only 1910 on January 31, according to Egan. He said a study conducted by the Public Buildings Service indicated that a deficit could not be avoided even though operations of the two developments were combined in the next fiscal year.

Occupancy figures at the end of January showed Arlington Farms, adjacent to Arlington Cemetery, housed only 1763 girls although it was planned for 7930. Midway Hall, at Langston Stadium on Oklahoma ave. near Benning rd., ne., was built for 453 occupants and had only 147 in January, Egan said.

As the first step in closing the dormitories, the PHA has given the present occupants five months in which to find other quarters and has offered to assist them, it was announced.

Tax Evasion Trial For Striner Set Mar. 14

Baltimore, Feb. 24 (AP).—Trial of Benjamin Striner, 7800 Orchid st. nw., Washington, real estate man and retired pharmacist, on an income tax evasion charge, today was set for March 27 in Federal Court here.

Striner pleaded innocent to the charge. The Government alleges he attempted to evade $59,552 in income taxes from 1942 through 1945. Striner formerly was president of the Washington Federation of Businessmen's Associations.

Drinking, Rowdyism Found At Schools, Civic Group Told

Dice shooting, drinking and rowdyism in and around Negro schools was reported last night to the Federation of Civic Associations.

The report was submitted by a special committee appointed to investigate reports of terrorism in the school. It was headed by Bernard C. Chapman, president of the Northeast Boundary Civic Association.

The federation, at its meeting at the District Building, adopted a committee resolution demanding immediate police protection for pupils, more effective Juvenile Court action and requesting futhorization for school engineers and custodians to make arrests.

Attacks, Thievery Cited

Attacks on a principal at one unnamed school and thievery in others by "irresponsible youths" were also cited in the report.

Schools which suffer most from activities of irresponsible youths, the report stated, are Dunbar and Armstrong High Schools, the M. M. Washington Vocational School, Banneker, Randell and Garnet-Patterson Junior High Schools, and the Turner Elementary School.

Material was gathered by the committee through a telephone poll of teachers, pupils, and school principals with the cooperation of Dr. Garnet C. Wilkerson, assistant superintendent of schools.

The federation endorsed Assistant Corporation Counsel Hubert P. Pair for appointment to one of the new Municipal Court judgeships recently authorized.

In another resolution, the federation appealed to Senator Matthew M. Neely, chairman of the Senate District Committee, for his "powerful assistance" in moving the District dog pound from its present location on the Randall Playground at South Capitol and I sts.

The resolution noted the pound is "a noisome pestilence and gross nuisance especially in warm weather," and that many appeals to the District government for its relocation have not been heeded.

The federation also appealed to the chairmen of the House and Senate District Committees to grant Washington policemen a five-day, 40-hour week.

Two File Off Leg Shackles, Flee Virginia Prison Camp

Filing through their leg shackles, two convicts described as "pretty bad characters" escaped from Virginia State Prison Camp No. 13, Woodbridge, about 2 p. m. yesterday.

Virginia State Police and camp guards were using bloodhounds in an effort to track them down, according to camp superintendent G. G. Jefferson.

The men are Charlie Skinner, 20, serving five years for housebreaking, and Roy C. Staggs, 23, serving two years for grand larceny.

Skinner and Staggs were two of nine men who were lodged in a dormitory cell at the camp for refusing to work, Jefferson said. All had individual shackles around their ankles.

A guard checked the men at 2 p. m., Jefferson said. All were present. A few minutes later the alarm was sounded when a passerby said he saw two convicts dashing across a nearby road.

According to the superintendent, the two men simply walked out of their cell door after filing off their shackles. Jefferson said the door wasn't locked because it was believed the shackles were sufficient to prevent escape.

Jefferson reported the men dashed into a heavily wooded area. He said they may have headed for railroad tracks about 1½ miles south, hoping to catch a freight train. The camp is just over the Fairfax County line in Prince William County.

Skinner, he said, is 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 171 pounds, has dark brown hair, medium complexion, stocky build. Staggs is 5 feet 7½ inches tall, weighs 157 pounds, has blue eyes, medium complexion, stocky build. Both wore brown prison clothes.

Keleher Divorce Suit Ends; Judge Delays Verdict

Judge Charles F. McLaughlin announced yesterday that he will delay decision in the Keleher divorce suits a week so that he can examine the "voluminous" record of the three-week District Court trial.

The case closed with lawyers for John B. (Dapper Jack) Keleher, 68, a "retired" gambler, and for his estranged wife, Mrs. Anna T. (Dolly) Keleher, 51, flinging charge after charge at each other's client.

James J. Laughlin, for Mrs. Keleher, called Keleher the "Stromboli" of Washington, a "wolf in sheep's clothing" and a "Doctor Jekyl and Mr. Hyde." Laughlin termed Mrs. Dorothy S. Blake, 46-year-old divorcee and friend to Keleher, a "shameless woman" and a "woman without morals."

Alvin L. Newmyer who represents the husband countered that Mrs. Keleher was a "woman who thought more of money than of her husband."

Ex-Union Man Sentenced for Slaying Here

Clarence B. Reynolds, 44, a former Iron Workers Union official who killed a union associate, received the maximum term of five to 15 years imprisonment for manslaughter yesterday.

Sentence was imposed by Judge Alexander Holtzoff of District Court. Reynolds had been indicted for first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of Vance Bowling, 45, last August but was allowed to plead guilty to the manslaughter count.

According to the prosecution, Reynolds had been drinking heavily at the time of the incident.

In another case, Holtzoff sentenced Le Roy Tate, 21, of 2644 Bowen rd. se., to eight months to two years imprisonment for injuring his nephew, William H. Tolson, by kicking him severely. When Tate's lawyer pointed out that it was a family quarrel, the judge replied that this was not a mitigating factor in the case.

"People ought to be kinder to their relations," said the judge.

Elbert W. Scott, 36, of 1241 6½ st. nw., received five to 15 years for manslaughter in the fatal beating of Mrs. Myrtle Scott, 30, of the same address.

Holt F. Wilkerson, 25, of 1050 42nd st. ne., according to court papers, received seven to 21 months imprisonment for refusing to take a mental test when called in 1948 for military duty under selective service.

31-Years Late

Tardy Medal Award Saves Guard's Job

A Purple Heart decoration—awarded 31 years late—has saved the job of Anton Kaliscinski, a civilian guard at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oak, Md.

Kaliscinski, who lives at 1350 4th st. sw., became a lab guard after retiring with 30 years' army service.

Recently, economy measures made a cut in the lab's guard force necessary, and Kaliscinski was one of those scheduled to leave on March 10.

Personnel officials queried the different guards and asked them to try and recall any circumstances that might add points to their civil service status.

Kaliscinski did not mention that he had been gassed in France on October 29, 1918, while serving as a corporal in the 102d Infantry Division, for which he should have received the Purple Heart.

He never applied for the decoration and when it was not forthcoming through regular channels he just forgot about it.

Somehow officials at the lab found out about the Purple Heart that had never been bestowed and persuaded Kaliscinski to accept the decoration.

He was reluctant at first, because he didn't want to deprive a family man of a job. Kaliscinski is a bachelor.

However, he finally agreed to apply for the decoration. And on Thursday the long overdue medal was pinned on Kaliscinski's breast by Rear Admiral Frank E. Beatty, commander of the lab.

Because of his Purple Heart the veteran will retain his job.

Greyhound Driver To Be Released Pending Inquest; Va. Woman Is Hurt

District traffic deaths this year 11
Traffic deaths this date last year 11
Total deaths, 1949..... 71

One pedestrian died here last night as result of a traffic accident and another was critically injured in another mishap.

Three others were hurt less seriously in two other accidents yesterday.

A man identified as William H. Wood, 50, of 3318 Sherman ave, nw., died in a Health Department ambulance on the way to Freedmen's Hospital, after he was struck at 6:27 p. m., at New York and New Jersey aves. nw.

Police said Wood was crossing New York ave. in a drizzling rain when he was struck by a Greyhound bus driven by Robert A. Edmonson, 33, of Baltimore. Edmonson told police he was travelling 20 to 25 miles per hour at the time of the accident and did not see Wood.

Inquest Later

He was booked as being held for the coroner, and was expected to be released in custody of Greyhound officials pending an inquest at a date to be set.

A few minutes later, Bruce Craig, 54, of 328 G st. ne., was struck while he was walking across H st. ne., near 3d st. He was taken to Casualty Hospital suffering a compound fracture of the left leg, fractured right leg and pelvis.

Police said that the driver of the auto which hit Craig was Robert B. Davis, 35, of 507 F st. ne. No charges were placed against him.

In a spectacular crash at 11th and I sts. nw., during the evening rush hour yesterday, another Greyhound bus was piled into a tree by its driver when, he told police, its brakes failed. However, before the vehicle brought up against the tree, it "accordion pleated" an auto against a standing Capital Transit Co. bus.

Car Collapsed

Driver and only person in the collapsed car was Mrs. Geraldine Bender, 23, of 3933 N. 4th st., Arlington. Firemen took 10 minutes to extricate her.

Driver of the Greyhound bus, which was empty and bound for the terminal at 11th st. and New York ave. nw., was Jennings J. Proudfoot, 26, of 1107 11th st. nw., according to Pvt. E. E. Proudfoot of the police accident investigation unit. Driver Proudfoot told Private Proudfoot that brakes failed as he went to slow up behind Mrs. Bender's auto, which was stopped behind the Capital Transit bus, for a red light.

Driver Proudfoot said he aimed for the tree, but struck Mrs. Bender's auto first. The Capital Transit bus, driven by B. T. Johnson, 32, of 1630 Lyman pl. ne., was heavily loaded, and slightly damaged. Mrs. Bender was the only one injured. She was treated for cuts, bruises, and shock, at Emergency Hospital.

In an accident at 9th and K sts. nw., at 9:10 a. m. yesterday, Elmer Stackemiller, 67, and Maude Stakemiller, 73, both of 21 Massachusetts ave. nw., were injured. Police said the cab in which they were riding was struck by an auto driven by Mrs. Catherine Cleaton, 28, an unemployed nurse, of 1403 Rhode Island ave nw.

Neely Cancels Federation Dinner Talk

Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) yesterday said he has decided not to speak at the March 7 dinner of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

He said he canceled his earlier acceptance of Federation President Herbert P. Leeman's invitation because of published sharp criticism by former Federation President John H. Connaughton.

Neely said he didn't want to wreck the dinner.

Connaughton said his withdrawal was a good solution.

Leeman said it was "very unfortunate" but would not comment on his further plans.

Neely as chairman of the Senate District Committee is Washington's unofficial "mayor."

Leeman succeeded Connaughton to the presidency last November in an election regarded as an upset for the old guard faction in the Federation. Connaughton, however, was not a candidate to continue in the office, and instead won election to the executive board.

The invitation, signed by Leeman, was sent to Senator Neely last month. He promptly accepted by telephone.

The newspaper story that led Neely to cancel his speaking date quoted Connaughton as telling last Tuesday's meeting of the Petworth Association that the invitation to Neely was about to "wreck our dinner."

Connaughton's remarks were in reaction to Neely's indorsement of the shift of Central High School from white to Negro use. Connaughton was quoted as saying he thought Neely had his nose in other people's business.

Capital Store Sales Up 7% During Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington department store sales in the week ended February 18 showed a 7 percent gain over the like 1949 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night.

This brought local dollar volume for the four weeks ended February 18 to 3 percent more than in the corresponding period last year.

Regionally, the Fifth Reserve District showed no change for the week and the four-week period.

Nationally, store sales were up 1 percent for the week and four-week period, according to the Federal Reserve Board. Philadelphia reported a 57 percent sales increase for the week, but this was due to the fact that at this time last year the city's sales were depressed by a transportation strike.

For the period January 1 to February 18, sales have averaged 4 percent under the same 1949 period throughout the country.

DEFICIT: Capital Transit Co. yesterday reported a deficit of $3212 for January, compared with net income of $66,701 in the same 1949 month. Operating revenues of $2,225,170 were 6.6 percent lower, while operating expenses of $1,854,642 were off 1.4 percent. Despite the red-ink figure, bid price of transit stock moved up to $32 a share yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange and 720 shares changed hands at that price. At $32, the stock was at the highest level since 1946. In 1948, the stock sold as low as $11.75. Since the Wolfson acquired controlling interest, Capital Transit stock has moved up about 14 points.

Monsignor Carroll Dies at Georgetown

Msgr. Carroll

Msgr. Walter S. Carroll, 41, an American priest who has had a distinguished career in the Secretariat of State at the Vatican, died at 4 p. m. yesterday at Georgetown University Hospital.

He had returned to this country early this month for a rest and to visit his mother. A few days ago, the condition of his health became critical and he entered the hospital.

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., Monsignor Carroll went to Holy Rosary Grammar and High Schools, and took a bachelor of arts degree at Luquesne University in 1930. He then did graduate work at a number of universities in Europe, including the North American College in Rome. He studied in Europe until 1940.

He was ordained in 1935 in Rome by Franceco Cardinal Marchetti-Salvaggiani, vicar general of Rome. Returning to the United States in 1940, he was assigned as assistant pastor of St. Basil's Church, Pittsburgh, for a time. However, he was recalled to Rome to serve in the Papal Secretariat of State and Bishop Hugh Boyle of Pittsburgh relinquished him.

Monsignor Carroll was attached to the Secretariat through the war years and the crucial ones afterward. In 1943, he went to North Africa to facilitate communications between the Holy See and the Church there. In 1947, he made one of several visits to the United States, one in interest of relief for displaced persons.

He was made a Domestic Prelate in 1944 by Pope Pius XII and dispatched to inspect the Vatican's humanitarian endeavors in Germany and Austria.

He represented the Holy See at the IRO meeting at Geneva in 1947 and at International Red Cross conferences in 1948.

Only two other American priests have served similarly at the Vatican. One is now Francis Cardinal Spellman, and the other is Bishop Joseph P. Hurley, formerly of St. Augustine, Fla., later Apostolic Nuncio at Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Asthma Sufferers Using APS Glycol Vapor

Last September we made a money-back offer so Asthma sufferers could use APS Glyco Vapor for a period of one month for test purposes. A number of Vapor Rolls were delivered on this basis with a very high percentage of satisfied users (over 80%). The results were so much better than we had expected we are again making this unusual offer so additional asthma victims may try APS Glycol Vapor.

The value of "glycolated air" as a method of reducing airborne germs and viruses which cause respiratory illness such as asthma, pneumonia, influenza, etc., has now become widely accepted in schools, hospitals, homes and offices. Actually this simple and harmless way of combating airborne viruses is the result of over ten years of research.

Details of this offer and an informative booklet telling about APS Glycol Vapor and its uses will be sent free to anyone writing for them. Simply send your name and address to Health Equipment & Service Corp., 904 Bonifant Street, Silver Spring, Md., or call SH. 0782. There is no charge. A penny postcard will do.

Home State Folks Honor Veep, Mrs. Barkley

By Nicha Soure

THE Veep's party rounds would not have been complete without last night's gala event—a dance and reception by his homestate folks for the Vice President and Mrs. Alben Barkley.

The Kentucky State Society honored its most beloved citizen at a get-together in the Shoreham Hotel.

Some of the Veep's friends made the trip from Kentucky to attend the Society's ball in his honor. More than 1800 former residents of the Blue Grass State and their guests gathered in the large ballroom to pay homage to the popular couple.

In the receiving line were Henry Iler, Miss Lela Mae Stiles, Miss Mary Hamilton O'Neal, Edward Seiller, Gilbert W. Kingsbury and Clyde Watson.

THE West Virginia State Society's mid-season dance will be held tonight in the West ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

This dance will be for West Virginians and their guests, in keeping with the society's policy of slating every other monthly dance for West Virginians only, and the balance for West Virginians and their friends from other states.

The Mountaineer get-together will be held in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. with Dave McWilliams furnishing music for dancing. A feature of the occasion will be a demonstration square dance, according to Charles M. Walker, president.

TONIGHT the Texas State Society will dance at the Wardman Park at 9:30 p. m. The Texas Cherry Blossom Princess will be presented to the home state folks at the dance. An election of officers and directors is included on the schedule.

THE TAR HEEL party tonight will honor the North Carolina State Society's members who have joined the "home-state-club" during the Golden Jubilee Year.

The mid-season reception and dance will be held in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. Dancing will be from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. to the music of McWilliams Orchestra.

Greeting the new members will be John K. Slear, president of the society; Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray, first vice president; Mrs. Jackson C. Davis, second vice president; Mrs. Stella O. Miller secretary; Commissioner of the Court of Claims W. Ney Evans, historian; Mrs. Macie Lowe, treasurer; the Rev. H. W. Baucom, jr., Chaplain.

THE young Georgia "peaches" will be honored at the Peach Blossom ball of the Georgia State Society March 4.

Georgia students in educational institutions around the Washington area will hold the limelight at the party in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

Preceding the ball a musicale will be presented by Leonard Davis, baritone, of Broadway, concert stage and radio, accompanied by John Marville, director of the Hamline School of Music. Ushers at the musicale, which will start at 9 p. m., will include Ben Stembridge, Albert Wallace, Robin Reid and William Wingate.

A Grand March of the students, and dancing, will follow at 10 p. m. For Georgians who prefer playing bridge or canasta to dancing, tables will be available.

Further information about the society may be obtained through Mrs. J. W. Thurston at Randolph 6833.

A WHEEL of fortune will spin March 4, and when it stops a new princess will be added to the Cherry Blossom Festival —the Magnolia State Princess.

Congressmen and Cherry Blossom Festival candidates will vie for the spotlight when the Mississippi State Society holds its annual Congressional Ball in the Shoreham Hotel—at 9:30 p. m.

Your Figure, Madame

You'll Never Lose Pounds If You Keep Saying 'Just This Once'

By Ida Jean Kain

THE incline to overweight is paved with good intentions and the oft-repeated excuse "Just this once won't count." There never was a more fattening phrase.

You don't count it, and a kindly Heaven won't hold it against you. But psychologists make it clear that it is always counted. Down among the nerve cells and fibers, the molecules are registering it to be used against you when the next temptation comes.

That, my friend, is habit again. Habit is set by pathways through the nerve centers. You are aiming to form new pathways, along lower calorie lines. So here's what to do. Instead of rationalizing that Saturday night and Sunday don't count and that you'll make this the "exception"—pull up short, think, "I haven't broken diet training yet, and if I do now it will mean starting all over."

First Slip Is a Stepping Stone

FOR EXAMPLE, you are now forming the habit of substituting fresh fruit for rich dessert. But if you take the devil's food cake Saturday, on the theory that "just this once won't count" . . . it will be twice as easy to break over Sunday. Face it, that miserable piece of cake may well be the finish of your figure-fixing course!

Happily, this works in the other direction too. Just by turning down that one tempting, fattening food, you are toughening your will power; for recall, will power itself is habit. It's the accumulation of right decisions that results in compounded strength. The secret is to build up rhythm with an unbroken sequence, and the method is not to permit a single dietary exception until the new habits are strongly formed. For it is this practice that grooves the new food habit into control.

Form Habit Before Breaking It

AND REMEMBER, this doesn't mean you can never enjoy a piece of devil's food cake again. You most certainly can. But fix the slimming habit first—in this case, the habit of choosing fresh fruit, or some low calorie dessert—try it for 30 days. After that you should be able to eat a piece of cake and enjoy every crumb with a calorie-free conscience, for it will not lead to the old pathway of daily rich desserts. Assorted carbohydrates lose their power over you. From then on, make it a game. Decide to have a favorite dessert only once, or perhaps twice, a week. That way you'll never again want dessert twice every day.

By Elizabeth Maguire

IN Washington Hollywood stars have a special glitter. And when invited to a party for Miss Dorothy Lamour, with or without her sarong, society can't go too far wrong. Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association and Mrs. Johnston gave a reception for her yesterday at 1600 I street, and over 300 celebrities and officials attended.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John Snyder were there, as well as the Ambassador of Italy and Signora Tarchiani and the Ambassador of Brazil, Mauricio Nabuco. The host himself, unfortunately, was not there, because of a slight illness, but Mrs. Johnston received with Mr. and Mrs. George Dorsey.

Other Stars on Hand

Honors with Miss Lamour were shared at the party by Jack Benny, Jo Stafford, Harry Cox, Marge Champion and Gower Champion, dance team, and Liberace, pianist.

"Your Florida suntan, Miss Lamour, is lovely," enthused a male guest. "Yes, it's a combination of Florida and California," was the civic-minded reply.

Hugo Gouthier, Brazilian Counselor, who is leaving Washington in about a month, was a guest. He said the next farewell party on his schedule is to be given today by Prince and Princess Pignatelli.

The little theater room in the Motion Picture Association building, where yesterday's party was held, was much admired by the guests. John Greer did the decorations in aqua and light mauve, and the murals are by William Golpin.

Mrs. George Is Guest

Mrs. Walter F. George was a guest at the party and also Mr. and Mrs. William Smith Culbertson and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kendall Foster. Others included Mr. and Mrs. Richard Coe, the Tarchiani twins, Dora and Letizia; Mrs. Charles G. Ross and Tony Muto.

The Hollywood stars came from California to attend the White House news photographers' banquet to be held tonight at the Statler. President Truman will attend the banquet. George Dorsey, who received with Mrs. Johnston yesterday is president of the White House news photographers.

Mrs. Shears Gives Tea for Daughter

MRS. CURTIS SHEARS gave a bon voyage tea yesterday for her daughter, Miss Julia Shears, who will sail next week for Europe. Miss Shears is going to Luxembourg to be on the secretarial staff of Mrs. Perle Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg. A graduate of Smith, Miss Shears has been an active member of the Junior League and was president of the day school at Madeira.

Among the guests yesterday, most of whom have known Julia since pinafore days were Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice; Mrs. John W. Snyder, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury; Mrs. Tom Clark, and her daughter, Mimi.

Mrs. Betty Tyson Lyeth, niece of Mrs. Mesta, will give a dinner party for Miss Shears in New York the night before she sails.

Mrs. Burrows Gives First of Tea Series

MRS. EDITH BURROWS gave the first of a series of three teas yesterday to show to her friends a portrait just completed by the noted Polish artist, Boleslow Jan Czedekowski. Mrs. Burrows went to Dallas to sit for the painting. She will have more friends in this afternoon and again tomorrow afternoon. Champagne instead of the usual cocktails will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse will entertain in honor of Claudio Arrau, noted Chilean pianist, following his performance with the National Symphony Orchestra Wednesday evening. The party will be given at the Shouse home on F street and there will be dancing.

Mrs. Nellie T. Ross Is Reception Hostess

MRS. NELLIE TAYLOE ROSS, Director of the Mint, was hostess at a reception yesterday with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Ross, and she will entertain at a similar reception today. Yesterday's party was held from 5 to 7 at the Dresden.

Admiral and Mrs. H. Raymond Thurber gave a dinner last evening for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nelson of Rhinelander, Wis. Mrs. J. (Jock) Clark entertained at cocktails yesterday for Mrs. Mary Fink and Miss Helen Knox.

A buffet dansant, inspired by the New Orleans Mardi Gras, was given last evening by Miss Anne du Val at her home on R st. Members of the Diplomatic Corps and residential society attended.

Mary MacArthur Memorial Ball Held

THE United Nations Club was bright with flowers and colored balloons for the ball held last evening for the Mary MacArthur Memorial Fund. A recording made especially for the ball by Miss MacArthur's mother, Helen Hayes, was rushed from Boston, where Miss Hayes is playing in "The Wisteria Trees." 'Mr. Jones, Meet the Master'

Humanity's Touch Seen as a Key Power Which May Stir God's Awareness

FOREWORD

There are no other sermons like Peter Marshall's. For there was no other man like Peter Marshall.

The beloved Chaplain of the United States Senate, Peter Marshall passed away recently at the age of 46. He had attained a national reputation at an age when most clergymen are still unknown.

The Washington Post during the early Lenten season is publishing the richest passages from Peter Marshall's most vigorous sermons. They were preached in Washington's historic New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. They were addressed to the man he called "Mr. Jones," to the multitude of clerks and taxi drivers, butchers and housewives, motormen and the lonely girl in the hospital ward.

Taken from the book, "Mr. Jones, Meet the Master," the sermons preserve the emphasis of his words, by a special typographical style. The manuscripts are presented exactly as Peter Marshall prepared them.

By Dr. Peter Marshall

THE TOUCH OF FAITH

"And His disciples said unto Him, 'Thou seest the multitude thronging Thee, and sayest Thou, 'Who Touched Me'?' " Mark 5:31

That is an electrifying question when you realize who asked it, and under what circumstances. You cannot escape the thrill of it—the tingle of excitement that grips you when you think of Christ stopping in response to the touch of a poor nameless woman.

The words of this question are not cold abstract inanimate dead words.

They do not form a hook on which one could hang theories or finely spun philosophies . . . They march into the vestibule of your heart and knock on the door.

The incident takes place in a city street. It is a narrow twisted street packed with a crowd of gesticulating, excited people, surging past its bazaars with all the noise and confusion of an eastern market place.

The crowd is jostling, chattering, hot and excited. On either side of the narrow arcade there are mysterious shadows into which gaily robed men disappear. It is a medley of flies and smells and heat
and din.

The crowd's caught up in the infection of curiosity, and walking along in their very midst, wedged in the tightly packed procession is Someone, tall and slim and straight. He is wearing a Rabbi's blue robe . . . a Rabbi with brown, strong hands, with dark, lovely eyes full of understanding and sympathy, infinitely tender.

It is His face that will hold your gaze—and will haunt you long after the sun has gone down, and the purple night, cool and star-lit, has stilled every noise in the city, while only the Syrian stars wink unsleeping.

This One Who walks like a king is named Jesus. They called Him the Nazarene or the Galilean. He called Himself the Son of Man.

The common people speak of Him softly, with deep affection, such as the shepherds know, who carry the little lambs in their bosoms.

At the request of one Jairus, a ruler of the synagogue, He is on His way to restore to complete health a little girl.

He is on a mission of restoration and the crowd is following Him in order to see Him perform this miracle.

Speculation is rife.
Opinion is divided.
There is argument and excited discussion.

Some are declaring that He can do it; others are doubtful.

Some frankly say the attempt is bound to fail.

There is in the crowd another face—the face of a woman.

Strange that it should be so noticeable—yet not strange, for it is a face that portrays great depth of human emotion.

There is so much in it—pale, pinched, and wan. Great lines of suffering mar its beauty and sweetness, and even now her lips are drawn in a thin line of agony.

The face is streaked with pain.

Her body is racked with acute suffering.

Who is she? Well, some say her name is Martha and some say Veronica.

Tradition gives her various names, but I cannot tell who she was.

She is typical of countless cases of endless pain and suffering.

For twelve years she had suffered and twelve years is a long time!

She had gone to many physicians and was none better—but rather worse.

She is typical of human despair—not only physical despair but spiritual despair as well. For her the world could offer no healing—so she represents all the people who look everywhere for peace of mind and heart—for hope and comfort—and find none.

She represents them all—whatever their wants their fears their hopes their pains.

For her apparently, there was no relief, no human aid. Here was a hopeless case—incurable!

Now this woman had heard of the Great Teacher of His wonderful works

She had heard the lepers talk and them that had been blind from birth and now had thrown away their sticks, and looked around them with eyes that flashed or filled with tears as they spoke His name.

She had heard what He had done for others.

Surely He had power to bring into the haven of health the lost explorers of the vast treasuries of pain?

There came to the woman the assurance that if she could but touch Him—even only the hem of His garment—she would be healed of her awful malady.

"Touch Him . . . yes . . . just to touch Him—

There would be no harm in that!

I do not think He will harm me . . .

They say He is so kind and gentle
so full of sympathy.

It would be enough—just to touch the border of His robes.

I must touch Him. I must get some of that power."

Now just a little farther. He is drawing nearer.

Now she can almost reach Him—another moment—at last just as He passes, she is able to reach out her hand, and with the tip of her finger touch His robe.

It was enough! She had actually touched the Great Doctor!

With a trembling finger she had touched Him with the touch of a mighty faith! Like an electric shock there surged back into the shrunken veins the panting lungs
the withered muscles and the bloodless flesh
the rich glow of health and vitality.

Once again a body had been redeemed and given life.

No one had noticed her—no one—but Christ!

Recognizing the one magnetic touch of faith amid the pressure of the crowd, He stopped and asked that terrific question: "Who touched Me?"

The question seemed absurd to those who heard it.

Impatiently, brusquely, almost with sarcasm, the disciples asked: "How should we know?

There are hundreds of people here—pushing all about you. Look at the crowd—and yet You ask 'Who touched Me?' "

But, looking around Him, Christ stood still—His kind, but searching glance fell at last on the face of the woman who had done it. His gaze held hers. Something passed between them, and she told Him her story while His eyes were fixed upon her, His eyes gave her confidence. They seemed to promise all that she desired. Her fear disappeared.

Then He answered her:
not in scorn at her action not in resentment . . .
but in the sympathetic tones of understanding love.

"Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole.

Go in peace . . . and be healed of thy plague."

That is the record. These are the facts.
It is a matter of history.

She touched Him in faith—in desperate believing faith and He stopped!

The touch of one anonymous woman in a crowd halted the Lord of glory.

That is the glorious truth of this incident. She touched Him. So can we.

The human touch has the power to arrest God.

Yes, to stop Him, to halt Him to make Him aware of your problems your pain your petition.

Oh, you say, "That's impossible. God is not interested in me. What does He care what happens to me—one tiny individual in all this creation?"

Well, there is the record.

There you have it in black and white that, stopped by the touch of a sick woman, He turned about
He Who conquered death
He Who defeated Satan
He Whom all the legions of hell cannot stop
He Who is King of Kings. . . .

He stopped just because a sick and nameless woman touched the hem of His garment.

We need to touch Him—Oh how much we need to touch Him!

Most of us are thronging Him—just like the crowd . . .

It is easy to throng the Lord and never touch Him.

A great many people in the churches, and perhaps a great many outside the churches are thronging Jesus seeking Him coming close to Him
but never actually touching Him.

In this matter of eternal importance, coming close is not enough.

Thronging saves nobody.

Coming near to Jesus will not bring healing.

We have to touch Him for ourselves.

Because we are out of touch with the Lord,
We are lost in the crowd have become separated from the Master.

The Old Book records for us some amazing promises some startling assurances if we would only believe them.

He promised that we should have power power—to do amazing things grace—to do unnatural things, such as to harbor no grudges and to forgive those who hurt us to love even those who treat us unjustly or unkindly to pray for those who give us pain and grieve us to confess our own private and secret sins . . .

He Who made these promises is here with us now.

Some of you may seek healing of body or mind or of soul.

Some of you may seek guidance on some problem.

Some of you need faith to stand up under the tensions and suspenses of life.

Some of you seek forgiveness and a new beginning.

All of us need to touch Christ for some reason or other.

Perhaps I can make some suggestions which will be helpful.

First, give God a chance. Take your problem, whatever it may be, to Him in prayer. Tell Him all about it—just as if He didn't know a thing. In the telling be absolutely honest and sincere. Hold nothing back.

Then the second step is to believe that God will hear you. Remember that He heard the poor woman who only touched the hem of His garment. Believe with all your faith that He cares what happens to you. You must believe that. You can't doubt it when you look at the cross.

Next, you must be willing to wait patiently for the Lord. He does not answer every prayer on Sunday afternoon. You may have to wait until Friday. But wait. God is never in a hurry.

Then when He speaks to you—as He will—do what He tells you. He may not tell you audibly. You may not hear your voices—as did Joan of Arc. You may not see any writing in the sky and have any unusual experience. God could if He wanted, send you messages in that way, but that is not His usual method.

God speaks sometimes through our circumstances and guides us, closing doors as well as in opening them.

Reach out your faith—touch Him.
He will not ask "Who Touched Me?"
He will know.

Make Moments Count

In all this world of hearts and souls . . . There is but one of you . . . So try to make each moment count . . . With everything you do . . . No one can answer to your name . . . Or try to fill your shoes . . . And nobody can save the time . . . That you neglect to use . . . No other one can expiate . . . The sins that you commit . . . However willing he may be . . . To take the blame for it . . . But it is you, and you alone . . . Who has to live today . . . And suffer all the consequence . . . When life has passed away . . . So try to make each moment count . . . regardless of the cost . . . And every mile will be worth while . . . And nothing will be lost.

Count the letters in your first name. Subtract four if the number is six or more. Add three if the number is less than six. Then you have the key number. Check each key number left to right. The letters under the checks form a message.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

They Take Their Faces With Them

This is the season of the year when taxicabs are going through the inspection lanes. Lieut. Thomas J. Heffernan, District Hack Inspector, simultaneously conducts a drive to make sure that drivers are obeying the law by displaying:

A zone rate map on the back of the front seat; zone rate stickers on the rear windows; and a $5 identification card bearing the hacker's photo. In addition, each driver must have in his possession while working, his cab's $25 PUC license.

Maps occasionally get lost, and window stickers sometimes get washed off, or damaged. But it doesn't happen very often. Few drivers will be found violating this part of the law.

But many a hacker will run afoul of Lieutenant Heffernan's men for failure to produce a PUC license, or failure to display a "face card."

"It's surprising," says the lieutenant, "how many drivers are not familiar with the law. Many think that if a company owns the cab, the company should hold the PUC license. But the law says that the man at the wheel must have it in his possession whenever he's hauling passengers."

The "face card" is also a source of trouble, because the hacker is instructed never to leave it behind when he's not in his vehicle. At the end of each day's shift, or whenever he leaves the cab for a meal, a cup of coffee, or to take care of an errand for the missus, the driver is supposed to take his face card with him.

As a result, he has several opportunities each day to forget to put it back in a "conspicuous place" when he returns to the wheel again.

Passengers who note the absence of the face card will be doing their drivers a favor by reminding them about the lapse. The next man to hail that cab may be a policeman.

DEPT. OF UTTER NONSENSE

W. M. Devine of 234 F st. nw. confides that he knows a baker who is slowly going crazy trying to cut costs.

He tried to increase the size of the hole in his doughnuts, but found that it took more dough to go around the enlarged hole.

MISCELLANY

The practice of selling blood isn't as dead as I reported the other day. One of our local college boys tells me: "Our fraternity would be perpetually broke if Walter Reed ever discontinued its policy of paying $25 per donation". . . Pat Sinnott of 1713 37th st. nw. observes that the H-Bomb probably rates as the biggest Mickey Finn in history . . . Jess Veihmeyer of 307 34th pl. ne. thinks somebody ought to organize a petition to Ham Fisher, to protest against the possibility that Bachelor Knobby Walsh may some day take the Fatal Leap. . . . Talk about stamp-buying schemes: Members of the American Federation of Labor are urged to buy a year's supply of the Samuel Gompers Commemorative Stamp, to stretch out for as long a period as possible the honor paid to the AFL's former president . . . Old-style streetcar tokens, for Children's Hospital, have been received from Charlotte M. Boyle, who works for the B & J Auto Repair Co., at 9001 Baltimore ave., Berwyn, Md. Charlotte says the tokens were found in trucks the company was repairing . . . Frank R. McGregor of 2700 Wisconsin ave. nw. complains that he had bad luck with Gretchen Hood's bee story ("I see you keep a bee") when he tried it on his father, "more years ago than I care to admit." Papa McGregor not only didn't laugh, but patiently explained that it was a standard joke with all farmers . . . Hmmmm! . . . Hereafter it looks like I'll have to check all my stuff with the Agriculture Department . . . This one isn't new either, but it's certainly worth repeating: "During the coal shortage, why not heat with potatoes, and kill two birds with one stone?"

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two kittens; one ink spot, one tabby; about 3 months old" (Temple 0659.)

"Three lovely puppies; two females, one male." (Alexandria 2254 after 7 p. m.)

"Housebroken, gentle, frisky black male dog, 1 year old; mixture of cocker and Labrador." (Columbia 5990.)

"Lovely 18-month-old mother cat, well trained; also a 3-month-old kitten." (Trinidad 2453).

"Two part-Persian kittens, 6 months old; one is black, the other Maltese gray." (Vienna 208-J.)

ADD DEFINITIONS

"There may be somebody in your audience," suggests a reader, "who has not heard the famous definition of an oboe—by Franklin P. Adams, I think—and so long as you're running items of this sort you ought to revive it."

An excellent idea. The classic definition of an oboe is:

"An ill woodwind that nobody blows good."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Phone Tapping on Hill Hinted

By Drew Pearson

It looks like the Truman Administration's secret intelligence is now even tapping Senators' telephones.

PEARSON

Wire tapping has increased under Truman even more than during the war, most of it being done by the Army or Navy. The FBI is careful to stay out. Newspapermen's wires are especially watched by other agencies, chiefly to find out where they are getting exclusive information.

Hitherto, it was believed that Senators' telephones were relatively sacrosanct, but here is what happened to fighting Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin last week.

McCarthy got a phone call from an office assistant saying that the House Un-American Activities Committee had a "secret report" listing "400 names" of alleged subversives. McCarthy then phoned Congressman Richard Nixon of California to ask about the "400 names" but did not mention the matter to another soul.

On the floor of the Senate, however, before McCarthy's speech about the State Department, shrewd Senator Scott Lucas, the Administration's spokesman, came up and asked McCarthy about his "secret report" and "400 names."

"I've never said anything about a secret report or 400 names," objected McCarthy.

"Oh yes you have," insisted Lucas. "We've got the clippings."

Suddenly Lucas looked as if he had talked out of turn.

"The only time I have ever mentioned it," McCarthy quickly added, "was over my private phone."

Lucas didn't say a word but walked off.

Wisconsin Senators

Twenty years ago, when the present Secretary of State was a young lawyer in Washington, one of his friends in the State Department, Prentiss Gilbert, got into a minor row partly because he had gone up to the Senate to call on Senator Robert La Follette of Wisconsin.

La Follette was a Progressive; and the thought of a State Department official talking to a Progressive made the white-spat reactionaries of that day cringe in horror. Because of this and other prejudices, Gilbert had some promotion troubles, and his friend Dean Acheson served as his attorney.

No one ever dreamed at that time that Dean Acheson later would be Secretary of State. Nor did anyone dream that Wisconsin later would elect another Senator, Joe McCarthy, who would also cause trouble for American Diplomats.

This writer, who has covered the State Department for about twenty years, has been considered the career boys' severest critic. However, knowing something about State Department personnel, it is my opinion that Senator McCarthy is way off-base.

Stale Subversives

The Senator from Wisconsin has been a healthy watchdog of some Government activities, but the alleged Communists which he claims are sheltered in the State Department just aren't. McCarthy picked his names from an old subversive list examined by the Eightieth Congress three years ago, and most of the men on his list were either ousted or, after thorough examination, found to be OK.

The dangerous female, whom he says is with the Voice of America, for instance, just isn't. She was employed briefly some time ago, but dropped. His "Case No. 2" is an American minister in Europe who is well-known to most Washingtonians and is about as communistic as Harry Truman.

Every man on the McCarthy list has already been scrutinized by the House Un-American Activities Committee or by a House Appropriations Subcommittee. The tragedy is that McCarthy's blast is likely to send State Department officials so far in the opposite direction that they will become as stuffy as in the days when it was considered revolutionary to be seen talking to another Senator from Wisconsin.

Note—When Senator Tom Connally of Texas was asked to have his Senate Foreign Relations Committee probe McCarthy's charges, he remarked: "I have more important things to do than go on a skunk hunt."
